ARRESTS MAY FOLLOW BIG TRAIN CRASH

Wreck in New York State Caused Deaths of Fourteen Persons

Official Inquiries Are Under Way

Erie R.R. Vice-president Says Freight Engineer Knew Track Not Clear

Associated Press
Binghamton, N.Y., Sept. 6.—While three United States Interstate Commerce Commission investigators set to work today to determine responsibility for the wreck of the Erie Railroad's crack Atlantic Express train No. 8 and the deaths of fourteen persons yesterday evening, regional officials of that road clamped a lid of silence down on the case.

Hours of diligent search of the city for J. W. Graves, division superintendent, failed to locate him.

Meanwhile, state, county, and city investigators planned to get at the heart of the entire matter at the district attorney's office. The crew of the train, whose switching operation caused the crash, was ordered to report for the district attorney's inquiry.

Decision as to the advisability of arrests will depend on the outcome of that inquiry, it was indicated.

HUNDRED INJURED
In the collision twenty-five persons were seriously injured, some of them so badly they are expected to die. Seventy-five received minor injuries.

Normal traffic conditions returned before dawn.

Investigators are seeking to find out why the milk train, and all others know of the stalled passenger train ahead, or if he did know why he did not stop his train. A flag man had been sent out from the rear of the train.

Coroner Frank C. Hitchcock announced an inquest would be opened next Tuesday.

The county and city began a joint investigation by questioning the members of the freight crew, whose switching held up the train.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT
Cleveland, O., Sept. 6.—Vice-President R. E. Woodruff of the Erie Railroad today said the engineer of the milk train which ploughed yesterday evening into a waiting passenger train near Binghamton, N.Y., was aware he did not have a clear track.

Woodruff, who is in charge of Erie operations, made the statement after a preliminary investigation of the accident.

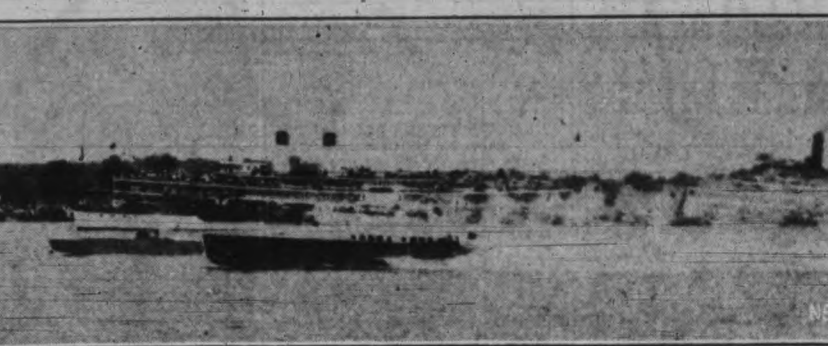

The statement of the Erie vice-president appeared to contradict quoted informal statements by Engineer M. H. King of Elmira, N.Y., that he "didn't see the signal light in time to stop."

BRITISH LUMBER TRADE STATEMENT
Government Expected to Declare Attitude on Imports From Russia

Canadian Press
London, Sept. 6.—Canadian representatives regarding imports of Russian lumber to the United Kingdom were considered by the cabinet yesterday, it is understood, and an official announcement indicating the government's attitude on the complaints will be made in a few days.

According to The London Daily Mail, the government has decided to conduct an inquiry into the matter of imports from Russia. The newspaper said it understood Prime Minister Bennett of Canada, in an interview with the Board of Trade, had urged imports of Soviet timber should be limited to half their present volume.

The series was won by Wood, who will keep the trophy in the United States for another year.

New Relief Ruling To Make Cities Pay Single Men's Costs

Municipalities Protest Latest Action of Federal Relief Administrator

CITIES CANNOT STAND BURDEN

Governments Will Make Payments on Same Basis as That Effective For Married Men

The full cost of unemployment relief for single, homeless, destitute men of British Columbia municipalities, formerly borne by the provincial and federal governments, will now only be undertaken in many cases on a one-third basis, similar to that on which relief is administered for married men, according to the announcement which has been sent to several municipalities by Col. D. W. B. Spry, special Dominion relief administrator for the province.

First intimation that the government would break their former agreement with the municipalities to provide for single men, was given at a meeting of the Ex-Quilts council yesterday evening, when a communication from Col. Spry stated that single men who had formerly received aid from the governments were no longer eligible under the present relief agreement between British Columbia and the Federal Government.

SAID INVESTIGATION MADE
According to word from P. D. Brac, Col. Spry's Victoria representative, the action of the Federal Government has been taken following investigation of the cost of single men under control of two governments. Victoria has received no notification of the ruling, although Mr. Brac said as far as he knew it would apply to all cities and municipalities.

In practically all cases where men were no longer classed as single, homeless and destitute, they were formerly accepted by the government inspectors. In the case of Ex-Quilts, Reeve Albert Head pointed out that the government originally started the system of paying full cost of single men's relief, and at that time all municipal cases were passed by the provincial relief officer, John Day. Prior to that time single men had received relief from the Regulars' Friendly Help, and this system would not have been changed.

U.S. DOLLAR IN LONDON
London, Sept. 6 (Associated Press).—The United States dollar here today closed at $4.53 1/2 to the pound sterling, opening at $4.53 1/2. The French franc was more firm on sterling, appreciating from an opening of 80.93 to close at 80.65. There was some buying of francs for the United States, but otherwise the market was quiet.

The men are Ward Van Orman and his aide, Frank A. Trotter, who took off in a United States civilian bag, and Capt. Francis Hynek and Lieut. Zbigniew Burszanski in a Polish entry. A balloon reported high over Manchester, N.H., yesterday evening, was believed to be one of the two, but it could not be identified.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Commander T. O. W. Settle and Lieut. Charles H. Kendall packed up their navy balloon and sent it to La Harz, N.J., from Brandford, Conn., and left for New York to await developments and learn if their 750-mile flight won the race.

New Canadian Flag Is Flown

The flag designed by Fred J. Popham, which has received much favorable publicity throughout the country by Canadians favoring a distinctive Canadian emblem, was flown to the breeze for a few minutes yesterday at the Parliament Buildings. The telephone operator at the Buildings was immediately besieged with queries as to what flag it was and why it was being flown. The flag was soon hauled down and the Union Jack went up in its place.

RAIL RATE ON APPLES IS CUT

B.C. Will Be Able to Ship East Under Advantageous Conditions

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 6.—Fruit growers of the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia will benefit by a reduction in freight rates on apple shipments eastward effective September 11, it was announced today. The reduction applies to both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways.

Official announcement of the reduction was made as follows: "As a result of representations made to the Canadian railways by fruit shipping interests in the Okanagan Valley, the railways have agreed to reduce the rates on apples to destinations in eastern Canada by twenty-five cents per 100 pounds below existing rates, and to destinations in the United States by fifteen cents per 100 pounds below existing rates, effective September 11 until May 31, 1934, by which time this season's crop will be marketed."

Apple shipments from the Okanagan to Port Williams under the old rate cost $1.28 per 100 pounds in carload lots. The Winnipeg rate was $1.13. The new schedule gives a reduction of twenty-five cents in the first instance and eighteen in the second.

SAYS FARMERS ARE NOT REDS

Hon. J. F. Bryant of Saskatchewan Tells Toronto Fair Directors About Prairies

Canadian Press
Toronto, Sept. 6.—"Farmers of western Canada are not a bunch of 'reds,' although a few 'reds' are to be found in their ranks," Hon. J. F. Bryant, K.C., Minister of Public Works and Acting Minister of Agriculture of Saskatchewan, told the directors' luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition here today. He said they were trying to bring about better conditions in rural life.

The farmer who endeavored to raise on his own farm the means of livelihood for himself and his family, and did not seek to gain wealth, was as a rule in a comfortable position during the present economic conditions, he said.

"Agriculture as a business, as a means of making money and making it quickly, has not been for some time," he said. "The big scale wheat growers are in difficulties."

Mr. Bryant declared it was not true the bulk of the prairie population was "raising" instead of "wheat." But, he added, farmers were not satisfied with the conditions of the wheat market. They believed the market should be regular and orderly.

DEATH SENTENCES FOR FOUR
Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 6 (Associated Press).—A military court at Starazagora today condemned four persons to death and fifteen others to a total of 120 years' imprisonment for disseminating Communist propaganda in military workshops. It was the second time a death sentence was pronounced within a week.

A vigorous pen is wielded by the editor of The Commonwealth, the C.C.F. organ, when there is talk of a rift in the organization. The Independent C.C.F. came in for stinging comment recently. Socialists of Vancouver who say the C.C.F. is not effective, and that they will run their own candidates, are dealt with by the editor in another issue.

"The little sect grandiloquently calling itself the Dominion-wide Socialist Party of Canada," consists in the main of a group of disgruntled former members of the Socialist Party of Canada, who severed their connection with the party in January last, chiefly because they felt that affiliation with the C.C.F. was in effect an adulteration of the pure milk Marxism with the water of reform," says The Commonwealth editor.

"They are entitled to such a view if they can 'make it stick' by fair means. But their tactics, then and now, do not tend to convince us that they are very much concerned with fair play. Any weapon it would appear, is regarded by them as legitimate. Their entrance into the political field can have no effect other than to confuse the public mind," the editor concludes.

"Some of our friends are sadly afraid that the November election is going to be hell's broth, but perhaps it will turn out merely an alphabet soup," Vancouver Province.

A last effort to reunite Conservatives was the way some politicians yesterday sided up the latest move in politics—that to unite independents at a convention.

FORD REPORT FOR ROOSEVELT

U.S. President Confers With NRA Director on Auto Manufacturer's Position

No Statement Yet From Ford As to Plans For His Plants

Associated Report
Washington, Sept. 6.—President Roosevelt has arranged to confer tonight with Hugh S. Johnson, his industrial administrator, on the status of Henry Ford, who has failed to align himself with other members of the automobile industry of the United States under the new NRA working agreement.

By telephone this morning, Johnson told the President he had no news about Mr. Ford.

The effort for a bituminous coal code would be renewed at once, he further reported, and a full and determined effort would be made to bring about this long sought agreement.

NO THREATS
Pending to-night, the President is saying nothing about what he has in mind regarding Mr. Ford. He has been relying on public opinion to support the national recovery programme.

As a result of his survey yesterday of the recovery council, the President feels things are going along pretty well, with constant re-employment.

By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer
New York, Sept. 6.—Remaining his distance from the automobile code and saying not a word as to his intentions, Henry Ford stood to-day as the first major industrialist to challenge the all-embracing procedure of the National Recovery Act.

Some saw in his silence an unspoken invitation to the United States Government to "start something," but President Roosevelt apparently had chosen to use quiet pressure, for the time being at least.

Hugh Johnson, forceful chief administrator of the National Recovery Act, said, "the next move is up to Mr. Ford."

Adding that no coercion was contemplated—meaning the "big stick" as it is called—would not be used presently—Brig. Gen. Johnson suggested an unfavorable public opinion would greet persistent opposition by the Detroit motor magnate to the wage-and-working-hours programme.

Private sources here, however, decided on an upward revision of wages in his plants. That would be in line with earlier predictions he would go the NRA one better.

H. B. ROBERTSON IS NEW JUDGE
Will Be Victoria's Supreme Court Justice, Resuming Residence Here

W. G. McQuarrie of New Westminster Appointed to Court of Appeal Bench

Two judicial appointments were announced today from Ottawa, elevating W. J. McQuarrie, K.C., to the British Columbia Court of Appeal, and H. B. Robertson, K.C., to the Supreme Court. Mr. Robertson, who will reside in Victoria, succeeds Hon. F. B. Gregory, who retired on superannuation.

Mr. McQuarrie is appointed to the vacancy created by the resignation of Hon. William G. Gair. The new Appeal Court judge is a former member of Parliament for New Westminster and a native of Ottawa.

Mr. Robertson came to Victoria as a young man from Ontario. He was called to the British Columbia bar in January, 1898, and built up his law practice in association with H. G. Barnard, now Senator Barnard, under the firm name of Barnard and Robertson. Later the firm was expanded with the inclusion of H. G. Heisterman, and later of E. T. Robertson, who had attained distinction as a counsel for the mainland. For years he was counsel here for the British Columbia Electric Railway.

Since moving to Vancouver, he has been continuously before the Court of Appeal in a series of important cases. His last big case was argued before the Court of Appeal in Victoria a few months ago. It was the fuel oil tax case, in which Mr. Robertson as counsel for the British Columbia government won.

RELIEF WORK IN TEXAS STORM AREA

Communication Still Slow As Workers Go Through Lower Rio Grande District, Where Hurricane Killed Thirty-two

Edinburg, Texas, Sept. 6.—The number of reported dead in the Texas hurricane was reduced to eighteen this afternoon when communication was established with Brownsville and it was learned there had been no fatalities there.

Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 6.—None dead, fewer than twenty persons injured and damage estimated at millions of dollars, made up the known toll exacted in the beautiful and prosperous lower Rio Grande valley of Texas and Mexico Monday night and till noon yesterday.

Many highways, inundated by pouring rains which accompanied the terrific wind storm, still were under water. Tangles of torn telephone and telegraph wires, with poles snapped like jackstraws, marked the path of the screaming tropical disturbance which raged inland from the Gulf of Mexico.

Edinburg, Tex., Sept. 6.—Scene of devastation, littered with debris of hurricane-ravaged towns, citrus groves and cotton fields, spread for miles over the lower Rio Grande valley today as residents of the stricken area began the vast work of restoration.

The worst disaster in the history of the fertile valley left highway traffic and communication disrupted, making it extremely difficult to determine the extent of casualties and losses. Relief agencies were badly handicapped in caring for the homeless and needy.

New Relief Ruling To Make Cities Pay Single Men's Costs

had it not been for government intervention. However, the governments refuse to continue the agreement which they instituted with the municipalities and are endeavoring to make their new action retroactive to June 1, which makes the municipalities responsible for one-third of single men's relief costs for the last six months of the year. They were previously led to believe that the governments would bear the total cost for the whole year.

Equivalents refused to accept this added responsibility and Reeve Head, Councilor Neil Fraser, chairman of the relief committee, and other members of the council interested, will take the matter up personally with the federal representative here.

Meanwhile, Reeve William Crouch, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, is planning to discuss the matter with Col. Spry in Vancouver. The reeve said that a greater portion of his single men were no longer eligible for relief from the governments and he understood this would apply to practically every other municipality in the province.

The effect of the new arrangement, if carried through, will be disastrous upon many of the municipalities and cities, where the number of single men is large. As pointed out by Reeve Head, no council has budgeted for this additional expense since they were led to believe that they would have to bear no part of the costs of relief for single unemployed during the whole year.

Mr. Brown, who is in charge of certain number of single men in the various municipalities, could still qualify for relief from the governments, but it was understood this portion was very small. In the case of Equivalents, the whole list had been refused.

Pending representations made to federal authorities it is expected the municipalities of the province will make a united protest against the breaking of the agreement.

signs of the day. The upward progress of the masses had been stimulated by the battle waged by liberalism on their behalf, he declared.

But the Democratic state had wandered far from liberal principles. Communism and Fascism, he said, with their challenge against democratic rule, threatened liberalism with death. That challenge should be met with combativeness and statesmanship. The weakness of the Democratic state was that it refused to be liberal, particularly in international affairs.

BODY FLOU ROWBOAT

Unidentified Man Discovered Near Ladysmith Wharf Just Before Noon To-day

Special to The Times. Ladysmith, B.C. Sept. 6.—The body of an unidentified man was found in a rowboat near the Transfer Wharf here this morning at 11:40 o'clock by Frank Canada who immediately notified the police.

Constable T. Hyatt and Dr. D. P. Hanington worked on the body, which was still warm, for nearly two hours but to no avail. There were no identifying marks on the body or in the clothes. The man appeared to be about sixty years of age.

The rowboat, freshly painted, is in the possession of the Provincial Police.

Monday night and fore most distressing sight of all was the citrus groves, ruthlessly stripped of their estimated $12,000,000 crop. It was estimated fully 90 per cent of the ripening fruit was scattered on the muddy ground—worthless. Limbs and leaves were ripped from countless trees.

"The ruin is almost impossible of description," a newspaper man re-kindling wood in three cities which apparently bore the brunt of the storm. Brownsville, Harlingen and San Benito. Fronts of brick buildings have been smashed to pieces. Debris is everywhere. Various towns were without water and their power plants were out of commission. Grocery stocks were heavily damaged.

WIRE DOWN. All the way from Brownsville to Harlingen telephone poles were broken off or leaning crazily, with wire trailing on the ground.

Across the Rio Grande the Mexican city of Matamoros was in equal distress. It was feared devastation there would be extremely severe due to a flimsy construction of many buildings. A railway station in Matamoros was wrecked.

Crashing in from the Gulf of Mexico at midnight Monday, the mighty storm brought death and desolation. Only the faint warnings had been heard. A week in advance prevented much larger loss of life.

Despite the warnings, however, the hurricane caught many people unprepared to withstand its tremendous force, and fears were expressed the death toll would grow as crippled communications made it possible to gather the complete story of the catastrophe.

While stricken thousands in the valley bore up bravely, despite the fact that their homes had been swept away, a new threat appeared in the form of a possible flood as a result of torrential rains which accompanied the hurricane.

FARMERS' LOSS. All through the area affected most seriously, encompassing from seventy-five to 100 miles square, thousands of farmers saw crops valued at millions of dollars destroyed.

At the same time, there was tremendous destruction in the urban areas where hundreds of homes were destroyed or damaged and business establishments in some places were wrecked. In Harlingen alone there was $300,000 to $1,000,000 damage, eighty per cent of the buildings having been damaged or destroyed.

Although Havana was comparatively peaceful, other parts of the island did not enjoy similar conditions. In Cienfuegos revolutionary demonstrators sacked hardware stores, stealing firearms. Trade was a standstill. Army and navy detachments protected foreigners.

As former Mayor Aragon of Cienfuegos was boarding the gunboat Balra with his family he was arrested. It was announced the cabinet positions had been apportioned thus: Cienfuegos, Porto, Secretary of State and of Justice.

Senor Carro, Interior, War and Communications. Porfirio Franca, Finance. Jose Izquierdo, Public Works and Agriculture. Ration Grau San Martin, Public Instruction and Sanitation.

By John P. McKnight. Associated Press Correspondent. Havana, Sept. 6.—A junta of five men took charge of the second revolution-born government Cuba has had in less than a month.

This "Executive Commission for Provisional Government," named after the rank and file of Cuban defense forces, had driven out President de Cespedes and his cabinet yesterday, will rule until an actual revolutionary regime is established.

NEW ARMY CHIEF. An army top sergeant, known as one of Cuba's best court stenographers, square-jawed, loud-voiced Fulgencio Batista, became commander of the army and five civilians became the heads of the government.

William Garland McQuarrie, who has practiced law in British Columbia since the turn of the century, has been prominent in the public life of the province, especially in New Westminster, for many years.

His first election to the Dominion Parliament was in 1917, when he was returned as a member for the royal city. He was re-elected in 1921, 1925 and 1926. At the last federal elections, however, he was defeated by Thomas Reid.

Born in Ottawa on July 26, 1876, McQuarrie was educated in public and high schools in Winnipeg and New Westminster, and at Osgoode Hall, Toronto. He called to the bar of British Columbia in 1900. Soon afterward, he began taking an active part in public life of the city, and in 1914 was chosen president of New Westminster Board of Trade.

In 1916 he was president of New Westminster City Conservative Association, and the following year headed the federal Conservative body for that city. In 1919 he was appointed a K.C. city. In 1919 he has been a member of the council of the Canadian Bar Association, member of the executive of the Canadian Branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association, and a member of the executive of the Canadian Branch of the Interparliamentary Association.

In 1901 he married Elsie Owen McQuarrie, daughter of D. H. MacGowan.

Delegates in Toronto Next Week Will Debate Improvement of Countries' System of Communication and Consultation

Canadian Press. Toronto, Sept. 6.—Adequacy and possible improvement of the existing system of communication, consultation and action between the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations will be considered at the sessions of the first British Commonwealth Relations Conference, to be held in Hart House, University of Toronto, September 11 to 21. While the conference will be unofficial, its deliberations may produce important results in opinion in every section of the empire.

Representatives of different shades of political opinion, also men who have had experience in the practical working of the constitutions and of the foreign policies of the British Commonwealth of Nations and students of international politics, will attend from each of the Dominions and from India, as well as from Great Britain. For example, D. B. Somervell and P. J. Noel Baker will be members of the British delegation; Prof. A. H. Charteris, Prof. Ernest Scott and Richard Windward, Australia; Hon. W. Dorman Stewart, New Zealand; Dr. Hon. F. S. Mahan, South Africa. Diwan Bahadur Walsawami Mudaliar, India, also will take part in the discussions.

NO RESOLUTIONS. The conference will not pass resolutions since its aims are in accord with those of the Institute of International Affairs, namely, to advance the science and study of international politics. The idea of such a conference does not express an opinion on any aspect of such questions.

INVITED BY CANADIANS. Invitations for the conference were issued by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, with which the idea of such a gathering originated. The object of the conference is to provide for:

1. A survey of the existing system of communication, consultation and action between the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

2. Consideration of the adequacy of the above system in the light of the existing constitution of the British Commonwealth of Nations and its problems, and all other relevant circumstances.

3. Consideration of specific suggestions for its improvement.

The idea of holding the conference was put forward by the Institute of International Affairs in January, 1931, when it was held in London.

Fair Association Draws Criticism

Vancouver, Sept. 6.—Vancouver and New Westminster Trades and Labor Council in session yesterday evening criticized the Vancouver Exhibition Association for allegedly importing United States citizens for the midway fairs at the fair. It was charged that the men came through Windsor, Ont., into Canada and were given permission to work the fairs all through the Dominion.

"Investigation discloses," Woodruff said, "that the milk train had stopped behind the passenger train at Binghamton station, and after departing from that point had passed two signals indicating trains ahead."

"Both these signals are in automatic train control territory and are so equipped that the engineer, before passing, is to acknowledge them, which indicates he was aware the track ahead was not clear."

By Charles E. Lang, Associated Press Staff Writer. Binghamton, N.Y., Sept. 6.—Fourteen persons were killed and twenty others injured, some of them so seriously they are expected to die, when a milk train traveling at high speed ploughed into a Chicago-to-New York passenger train, yesterday evening.

The fire, en route to New York, had been stopped by a switch engine at work ahead.

All of those killed were taken from a wooden coach that had been sandwiched between cars of steel and steel, which had been derailed by the impact of an enraged giant. One moment before the crash, the train was filled with passengers, many of them returning from vacations. The next it was a mass of splinters and twisted steel.

Every hospital in Binghamton, Johnson City and Elmira sent ambulances and carried injured to operating rooms.

M. H. King of Elmira, engineer of the milk train, running between Hornell and Hoboken, said: "I didn't see the signal light in time to stop. It happened so fast."

At the end of the fiercer was a steel car with another net, and the wooden coach of the type known to railroaders as "an old 1887" the one from which the dead were taken. The impact of the collision split the wooden car like kindling wood.

William Dringo, a gardener who witnessed the wreck, gave a vivid account of the collision.

"I had gone back to my garden before the track for my coat when I heard the milk train coming and saw its light shining ahead down the track," he said. A brakeman with a red lantern in his hand began running like mad in the direction of the milk train, waving his lantern. The next thing I knew there was an awful crash, like a mountain falling down. I ran back to the passenger train then. Part of the cars were piled up like a heap of kindling wood. I could hear people yelling and crying, crying for help, and yelling other people's names.

"I began to pull people out of the wreckage. One little boy was screaming for his mother. I don't know how many I pulled out. It was awful."

DAVID R. ROBINSON, negro porter in the rear car of the parlor car at the end of the passenger train, said: "I was in the kitchen of the parlor car. Suddenly I heard an awful smash. I could see the car buckling. Then everything went black as a grave."

"When I came to I heard people screaming and crying. I heard a little boy crying 'Mamma, Mamma.' I called to him, 'Wait a minute, sonny.' I tried to get up and I couldn't, my right leg was numb, so I crawled out to crawl out through the car and I prayed as I crawled. I was terribly faint and the screams of those poor passengers were awful."

"Then I guess I must have fainted, because the next thing I knew a pillow was under it."

WOMAN HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

In Spokane Mrs. J. I. Gaines Accused of Killing Husband

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Lily Bank Gaines was a prisoner here today, having been arrested on a first degree murder charge yesterday evening in connection with the slaying, August 15, of her husband Dr. James I. Gaines, forty-one-year-old wealthy sportsman and sanitarist.

Mrs. Gaines was taken into custody, Detective Captain James McCarty said, after Willis B. Garrett, forty-one-year-old railroad fireman, had signed a statement that Mrs. Gaines had offered him $5,000 late in July to kill her husband. Garrett had been arrested on a charge of attempting suicide with gas, and told his story at emergency hospital attaches were reviving him.

After Garrett had told his story to Detective Charles Pratt Sunday evening, an hour after he had been found in his home, he signed a statement. About July 28, the statement said, Mrs. Gaines, who Garrett had known before she married the sportsman, offered to pay him $5,000 if he would "do away" with Gaines "by striking him on the head."

"Mrs. Gaines said she would do the rest," Garrett said.

OFFER REJECTED. The fireman told police he had refused to accept Mrs. Gaines' offer, and after discussing it with his wife, visited Mrs. Gaines several times "to talk her out of the notion of killing her husband."

Mrs. Gaines was brought before Garrett after her arrest and he told his story. "I don't know anything about it," she shouted to the detectives, but admitted she was acquainted with Garrett.

Calm throughout every examination since her husband's death, Mrs. Gaines obviously was near collapse after hearing Garrett's story. She soon regained control of her emotions, however, and refused to answer questions until her attorney, Edward Robinson, could be called.

Mrs. Gaines, a former office girl, was a beneficiary in life insurance policies amounting to $46,000, and was given the home, an expensive automobile and other property in Gaines' will.

FORD REPORT FOR ROOSEVELT

Back in Washington looking refreshed from a brief holiday, Roosevelt sent an appeal to the Chicago convention of the American Bankers Association for liberalization of credit to industry seeking expansion.

"Only if this is done can employers do their full part in the great recovery drive now underway," the President said.

There was no supplication when Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation appeared before the convention with the warning the government, if need be, was ready to step into the bankers' place in aid of industry. It had been suggested the federal financed corporation could legally loan money through a grouping of businessmen in the various localities. It is not vested with authority to make loans to individuals.

Meantime, the public works administration voiced dissatisfaction with the response to its attempt to provide jobs on public works. With $3,300,000,000 to spend, Secretary Harold Ickes of the Interior Department, as public works administrator, called on states and cities to hurry along plans for public works projects socially desirable and feasible from an engineering standpoint.

Delaying the backward states and cities is the fact they have to help finance such projects.

JOBLESS LISTS REDUCED. Volunteer workers raking the country over in the campaign to put more NRA "Blue Eagles" in store windows, had optimistic reports for the administration. Cleveland was said to have put an average of 650 men and women back to work every day during August. Indianapolis unemployed figures declined by 5,884 as the result of the week-old drive. Something like 6,500 new jobs were found by campaigners in Evansville, Ind., Ashland, Ky., and Fort Worth, Texas.

NO MOVE ANNOUNCED. Chicago, Sept. 6.—The United States Government will take no action to bring Henry Ford into the NRA fold unless he violates the rules of the automobile manufacturers' code, according to Hugh Johnson, recovery administrator.

He put the Ford situation into three words.

"It's Ford's move."

As to the probability of the Detroit automobile manufacturer's violating the auto code, "I don't think he will," said Johnson here yesterday.

Ford's minimum pay is high enough to top the minimum set up by the general code, and the NRA director indicated the only avenue by which Ford might come into conflict with the recovery programme would be his dealings with employees.

"If Ford employees should organize and send representatives to negotiate with him," Johnson stated, "and Ford refused to meet them he would, of course, be violating the auto code."

"Probably he won't violate the auto code," he said.

"If he does, I'll have to do something," he said.

HOLDS NRA POST. Detroit, Sept. 6.—Henry Ford is honorary president of the Dearborn, Mich., unit of the NRA. It has been revealed.

The fact Dearborn's first citizen had been named to the post was announced when the unit met yesterday to determine what, if any, action should be taken regarding his appointment in view of the fact he has not signed the NRA agreement for the automobile industry.

The unit was formed three weeks ago and its officers, saying they had been assured Mr. Ford would co-operate, named him honorary president.

Yesterday's meeting of the unit adjourned without reaching a decision regarding Mr. Ford.

MINISTER SEES RAILWAY GAINS

Canadian Press
Newmarket, Ont., Sept. 6.—Improvement in business being "plainly discernible," Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, believes the worst is over as far as Canadian railroads are concerned.

In a paper read in his absence to the Liberal-Conservative Summer School here yesterday, the minister expressed his confidence in the future of the railways, but warned against expecting too much improvement under any plan of railway management until there is a sufficient revival in world business to restore a "reasonable proportion" of the traffic lost through recent world-wide stagnation.

"We believe we are entering the era of recovery and it is to be hoped during this critical period there may be no false movement from within railway organizations themselves which may delay or retard the natural return of business," his paper said.

The minister said the railways, as one barometer of general conditions, should be watched closely for the remainder of the present "crucial year."

Eight Killed In Soviet Plane Crash

Moscow, Sept. 6.—Eight persons, three of them leading figures in Soviet Russia's aviation circles, were killed yesterday when their plane crashed to earth south of Podolsk.

The victims were: E. Baranoff, assistant commissar of heavy industry, who directed Russia's entire aircraft industry; his wife, V. Baranoff; A. Goltzman, chief of the civil air fleet, and his assistant, A. Petroff; V. Zavarzin, member of the Presidium State Planning Commission; C. Gouboff, director of the Moscow Airplane Works, No. 22; E. Doshman, pilot, and M. Plotnikoff, mechanic.

Cause of the crash was not determined.

CHANGES URGED IN B.N.A. ACT

Calgary, Sept. 6.—False impression of Canada has been created abroad by the Dominion's failure to ratify past international labor agreements, according to Dr. Mack Eastman, chief of the research division of the International Labor Office at Geneva, a visitor in Calgary.

Mr. Eastman pointed out Canada's position was due to most labor matters coming under provincial jurisdiction and not within the compass of Parliamentary discussion. He said this resulted in Canada's delegates at international labor conferences being fettered, the false impression arising, and which, he thought, should be counteracted.

Referring to Prime Minister Bennett's statement on his arrival from London at Montreal Canada could not experiment with shorter hours of work and higher wages, Dr. Eastman said the answer of the League of Nations to this would be to co-operate with other countries even though independent action was impossible.

To co-operate, however, would mean Canada must alter the British North America Act, bringing labor questions within Federal jurisdiction.

Death Toll Of Storm Forty-nine

Associated Press
Tokio, Sept. 6.—Death toll of a recent typhoon in southern Korea and western Japan mounted to-day to forty-nine, of whom twenty-one were young athletes en route to a track meet, drowned when the motorboat in which they were crossing Lake Hashiro, near Akita, capsized in the high wind.

Landslides in southern Korea resulted in eleven deaths. Fourteen were killed in Seoul, capital of Korea.

The world's largest stadium is at Soldier's Field in Chicago.

In the centre of the first row of men coming out of Canada House was first Hon. Stanley M. Bruce, chief delegate from Australia, who played a big part in the proceedings.

PRISONER IS SHOT BY GUARD

One Killed in Outbreak in New York Hospital For Criminal Insane

Associated Press
Matineawan, N.Y., Sept. 6.—One inmate of a state hospital for the criminal insane was shot to death by a state trooper, and two others were overpowered by police officers forced their way into a small room, where four crazed men had barricaded themselves during an attempted escape early today.

Ray Fisher, twenty-two, Buffalo, leader of the attempted break, was killed by Trooper Robert Galyin. Fisher was shot down when he leveled a .22 calibre revolver at Galyin as the latter crashed through the door. James Ellis, Brooklyn, and S. Marshall, New York, were sprawled on the floor, where they had fallen, overcome by the enormous amount of tear gas fired into the room.

Reinhardt Votz, New York, inmate for twelve years, was found unharmed in a wash room nearby.

The men had struck a guard down with a chair and made a dash from the large ward, where they were kept with sixty-four other patients. More than sixty guards, state troopers and other officers had surrounded the room where they were barricaded with their own revolvers.

Meanwhile, the inmates in the ward had gone on a rampage, smashing furniture and windows in the room where they were held with two guards. They completely wrecked the room, but did not molest the guards.

FARM CAMPAIGN IN U.S. SPEEDED

Measures Designed to Bring Back Prosperity to Agricultural Sections Widened

By Ken Clark
Canadian Press Staff Writer
New York, Sept. 6 (Canadian Press).—While the "Blue Eagle" of the national recovery administration spreads its wings over the just and the unjust industrialists of the United States, the campaign for rehabilitating industry enters a critical phase, the Rooseveltian "experiment" for restoring a degree of prosperity is pushed along another front—the agricultural.

The first six months of operations of the Department of Agriculture under the Farm Adjustment Act have been concluded. Many acres of cotton have been ploughed under, as officials hope many acres of wheat may be hundreds of thousands of pigs and sows are being put on the market to be sold at a government premium.

The money to pay the producers will be obtained from a processing tax. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace has levied a tax on cotton of 42 cents a lint pound and on wheat of 30 cents a bushel.

The cotton tax will go to pay producers who ploughed under 10,000,000 acres, approximately $110,000,000.

Those wheat growers who reduced their acreage 15 per cent stand to get about $120,000.

PREMIUMS TOTAL $36,000,000

Funds to pay premiums on the 4,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 farrow sows now moving to market will also be obtained through a processing tax. Premiums are estimated at $50,000,000. Approximately $150,000,000 is scheduled to go to corn growers who reduce their acreage by what Secretary Wallace hopes will be 20,000,000 acres.

The basic plan of the secretary is to adjust production to demand and balance the market until prices for farm products are increased to a definite level. To this end experts are pushing schemes to make marketing arrangements for perishable fruits and vegetables, beans, potatoes, poultry, eggs and nuts, and control the amount of production to be placed on the market.

A blanket agreement for the entire milk industry also is contemplated.

PUBLIC TO PAY

All these arrangements have to be paid for, and it is clear the public will pay. Supporters of the programme feel, however, restoration of farm purchasing power will be more important than the hole knocked in the public's purse.

As a result of a combination of the governmental plans hoped for business recovery, and the weather, prospects give the farmers this year about $2,000,000,000 more than their low income of $5,000,000,000 during 1932.

VERMONT GIVES VOTE FOR LIQUOR

Associated Press
Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 6.—Vermont, long a rockbound dry stronghold, yesterday joined the parade of states favoring repeal of the United States prohibition amendment. It was the twenty-fifth consecutive state to record itself in opposition to retention of prohibition in the constitution of the Republic. No state has voted for the amendment.

Regarded until the last as the most doubtful state yet to act, Vermont recorded itself about 2 to 1 for ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment, by which the Eighteenth Amendment would be repealed.

Complete returns from the 248 towns and cities in the state gave for repeal 41,220, against 20,631.

WAR WAGED ON EPIDEMIC

By F. B. Colton, Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 6.—The United States public health service had announced to-day latest evidence indicates a possibility "sleeping sickness," now epidemic in the St. Louis region, may be spread like infantile paralysis through secretions of the nose and throat.

This theory will be one of the guides in an intensified programme of research on how the disease is transmitted, plans for which were laid in a week-end conference between Surgeon-General Hugh S. Cummings and Dr. J. P. Leake, who heads the public health service staff studying the disease in St. Louis.

A whole zoo-full of monkeys will play a part in the new drive. They will be inoculated with the virus which it is believed may be the cause of the disease, isolated last week by Dr. Margaret S. Smith of Washington University.

FARM WORKER KILLED BY TRAIN

Canadian Press

Chilliwack, B.C., Sept. 6.—George William Raby, twenty-one, was instantly killed at a farm crossing a mile west of Chilliwack Monday, when the car he was driving across the tracks was struck by a Canadian National Transcontinental passenger train en route to Vancouver.

Accompanied by George Dibble, a neighbor, Mr. Raby was en route to work in Dibble's car. The latter got out of the car and opened the farm gate. Dibble heard and saw the train coming, and expected his companion to stop, but he drove in front of the train.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Raby, Sumas Road.

AID IS ASKED BY FARMERS

Dominion Government Hears Requests From Needy Areas of Saskatchewan

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—More than half the municipalities of Saskatchewan, plagued by drought and grasshoppers, will need government assistance this winter, and fifty-eight of them will be unable to pay any share of the cost. The Dominion Government was told yesterday. Steps are now being taken to reach an agreement between the Dominion and provincial governments whereby the extra relief requirements may be met.

Prime Minister Bennett and other members of the cabinet received a large delegation from Saskatchewan yesterday afternoon and spent more than two hours discussing the problem. Mr. Bennett had no statement to make following the conference, but it was reported he had expressed disappointment the prairie provinces would require greater assistance than was necessary last year. He promised the consideration of the government.

Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Attorney-General of Saskatchewan, was spokesman for the delegation, which included both provincial and federal members of Parliament. The situation in southern Saskatchewan was very bad, he said, but he was confident the necessary assistance would be found to enable farmers to carry on through the winter and make a fresh start next spring.

FOOD AND SEED

Food for distressed families, fodder for stock and seed for next year would have to be provided in 140 municipalities, it was stated, and fifty-eight of these were absolutely bankrupt and unable to contribute any share.

Arrangements were made for a representative of the Saskatchewan relief commission to lay further information before the government and the requirements in respect to drought and grasshoppers will be dealt with along with the whole relief problem.

Henry Black, chairman of the Saskatchewan relief commission, a former mayor of Regina, graphically described the grasshopper scourge, but advanced reasons for a general belief the plague would not return next year. Drought and grasshopper plagues were almost a new problem to the prairie farmers, he said, neither having greatly interfered with the harvest until two or three years ago.

Young Judges At Toronto Exhibition

Canadian Press
Toronto, Sept. 6.—An army of Ontario's younger farming folk, 733 strong from thirty counties, invaded the Canadian National Exhibition here as guests of the directors to-day and celebrated Agriculture Day.

They held judging contests, visited the livestock and paraded through the grounds with Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, and S. N. E. directors at the head. This evening they will be guests at a banquet.

The attendance yesterday was 66,000, an increase of 1,000 over the same day last year to bring the total increase for 1933 over 1932 to 29,000.

SEEK TO SUE GOVERNMENT

Fruit Importers in Vancouver Consider B.C. Legal Action; No Fiat Yet

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Sept. 6.—Seventeen leading fruit and commission dealers of Water Street, Vancouver, are contemplating an interesting action at law against the provincial government to recover something like $500,000 paid—they claim wrongfully—for inspection fees on imports over a long period.

Leading dealers admitted they had consulted legal counsel and contemplated making a fiat from the government for the right to start suit. Unofficially, from the standpoint of the government, it is said to be doubtful a fiat will be issued, because, even if the tax was wrongfully collected, the Water Street brokers have presumably charged the amount during the long period of years back to the individual consumer, and there is no way of reimbursing the consumers or the farmers.

Broadly, the claim is based on the same proposition which says the provincial government has no right in law to collect a tax on fuel oil. But the tax on imported fruit and vegetables goes back far longer than the defunct tax on fuel oil, which was fought through the courts and defeated.

STARTED THIRTY YEARS AGO

Fruit inspection offices were opened in Vancouver thirty years ago. For a time the service was handled by the federal government, but about 1910 a provincial government staff was appointed and a fee was charged for this service. A few months ago a cargo of corn was imported by the Buckfield Company and the provincial government sought to make the usual inspection charge.

Protest in behalf of the Buckfield Company was made by Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C., who is said to have advised the provincial authorities they had no right whatever in law to make the charge and that the whole basis of provincial inspection for fees was wrong. The result was that the provincial government decided to discontinue its service.

The inspection office is now manned by a staff under federal direction and no charge is made for inspection, which brings British Columbia into line with the remainder of the Dominion.

COMMON LAWS' TEMPLES THREATENED

Canadian lawyers in the annual Bar Association meeting at Ottawa have been devoting much of their attention to phases of the world social and economic upheaval. That they should do so is natural as such changes impinge on nothing more directly than they do on the law, which is merely the code by which man lives with his fellows.

With the civilized world plunging right and left into a programme of nationalism, the outlook is for major changes in the whole field of principles of law and government, according to the presentation of the case by the bar convention's guest speaker, the Canadian-born and now internationally eminent Mr. J. Grafton Rogers, for years in charge of Canadian affairs in the United States Department of State. The present-day trend of the civilized world under the new nationalism has come into collision with the great school of ideas which many enlightened men have accepted as wise and workable for generations. The result is the elements called liberal in the old sense are bewildered; the stable elements in several great nations are silenced and demoralized.

In the view of Mr. Grafton, the extraordinary development in so many countries of high tariff walls, of campaigns for self-sufficiency, of disillusion over democracy and other striking movements, are really only parts of a much larger pattern. That pattern appears now to be a rearrangement of our whole conception of what government should be and do and of what law should accomplish as the means of government. "If the world is what it seems to me, the new nationalism threatens most of the temples and shrines of the English common law," he said. The outlines of the nationalistic image were pointed to as familiar. The "Buy British," "Buy American" slogans, tariffs and embargoes to shelter domestic industries from foreign competition, the tendency to intensify our own culture and resist the invasion of art and ideas from abroad, the plea for sufficiency within national boundaries from motives of pride, economic fears or military dread, were cited.

"We wall off foreign goods and influences that might interfere by tariffs, embargoes and other barriers," he said. "The result is to make each country a closed vessel for experiments. None of those policies is altogether new. Some seem the simplest patriotism. All are old companions of the impulses to self-justification, community pride and racial culture which we recognize and often cherish. When St. Paul said: 'I am a citizen of no mean city,' he was riding at the same gait that carried the British John Bull and the Babbitt of the United States centuries later jogging down the lanes of history."

The policies known as bolshevism, socialism, fascism, and industrial planning, are all fundamentally one, with emphasis on varying aspects. They all have in some phase or other represented enclosed economies, calling, as Mr. Grafton has pointed out, "for a rigid regime of legal representation within political boundaries." It is the task of the lawyer to rationalize such changes in social relationships.

NEW ERA IN RAILROADING

In The Cosmopolitan Magazine Henry Pringle says that engineers are designing trains which will be able to compete with airlines on this continent, and which will be operated at half the cost now required for the operation of present-day crack trains. In fact, it is announced that before long two great railroad systems will have trains which will be operated much more cheaply than it costs to operate existing rolling stock. The top speed of these trains will be 110 miles an hour and their average will be eighty-five miles an hour. Each will be limited to eighty tons as against the one-thousand-ton trains which are now in operation. It will cross the continent in fifty-four hours.

"These two trains," Mr. Pringle says, "one of aluminum and the other of stainless steel, will be beautiful sights as they flash past the countryside. The margin of profit in the operation of such trains will be large. It is for this reason that railroad officials look forward to the day when to-morrow's train crosses the continent in forty or fifty hours. One train will cost only fifty-five cents a mile to run. This is an almost unbelievable figure; so extraordinary that the data behind it have been checked and rechecked. See what it means; the government allows twenty-eight cents a mile for carrying the mails. The company will therefore be required to spend only twenty-seven cents a mile for this new and speedy train."

"To-day's basic passenger rate is 3.6 cents per mile. Suppose, for the sake of simple calculations, that it were three cents. This means that only nine passengers would have to be carried for the train to break even! The rate could be slashed to two cents and operating costs met, with only thirteen passengers. The capacity of the train is seventy-six passengers."

"A ten-car conventional train needs 3,400 horsepower. One of these trains will be equipped with distillate engines, and the fuel to be burned will cost only four cents per gallon. One gallon will pull the train one and one-quarter miles."

The railroads are profiting from the data and knowledge accumulated by the aircraft industry. Mr. Pringle says: "Aviation engineers, not old-line railroad men, have designed the new trains which will soon speed across the continent."

This looks like a New Deal in the railroad world. It is recognition of the fact that transportation by this means is a commodity like the necessities of life and must be sold on that basis. It must be based upon the capacity to pay of the average person, who represents nine-tenths of the population, not upon the pocket-books of the wealthy few. Transportation must be turned over quickly and at low prices like the stocks of a departmental store. Hotel accommodation and other accessories of transportation must be subjected to the same policy. Railroads, to remain solvent, must induce the plain people to travel by lowering their rates to the plain people's ability to pay, and this must involve facilities which cost proportionately less to operate. This is every-day, kitchen economics, but it is upon kitchen business that the economic structure of the world must stand, if it is to last at all.

ESQUIMALT'S GRIEVANCE

Esquimalt municipality has a just grievance against the new relief dispensation under which it is required to pay one-third of the cost of maintaining its unemployed single men. Until the new order, now announced by the federal relief offices in British Columbia, came into effect, the Dominion and province bore the burden.

The Dominion has large property holdings in the municipality on which it pays no taxes. These include the extensive navy yard and dry-dock areas, the Signal Hill district, the canteen grounds and other localities. If this very considerable area were revenue producing Esquimalt would have no difficulty in meeting its relief requirements. Probably it would be able to finance itself without any outside assistance.

In these particular circumstances Esquimalt is entitled to special consideration from Ottawa. In fact, the Dominion government ought to bear the entire cost of the relief problem in that municipality, considering what it gets there for nothing.

All this is a far cry from the days, prior to the general Dominion election of 1930, when Mr. Bennett insisted that unemployment was a Dominion matter, when he promised in virtually every one of his numerous speeches throughout the country—including his speech in Victoria—that it was the duty of the King government to find a solution, and that if he were elected he would settle the problem in a few days. Instead, we have not had a solitary constructive policy on the subject. We have had fits and starts, understandings and repudiations, agreements and their violations, until no human being today is sure what to expect a month from now.

If ever a country was afflicted with the blight of myopic ineptitude in government, Canada certainly is, and the treatment meted out to Esquimalt presents us with a perfect example of this deplorable fact.

A WORTHY OBJECT

One of the happier features of the economic crisis through which Victoria is common with other centres throughout the world has been passing has been the readiness of the more fortunate members of the public to rally to the assistance of those lame dogs who, through no fault of their own, need help over the stile which bars the path to the means of livelihood. When the women's organizations of the city rallied in October, 1931, to the assistance of their less fortunate sisters, who were, in many cases, facing destitution owing to the state of the labor market, and established the Women's Workroom, they launched an undertaking which has proved a veritable Godsend to many elderly and needy women.

Through its medium, an average of 110 women a month have been given work for a few hours each week, the amount expended in wages for the twenty-two months totaling $22,932.50. As a result, these women have been enabled to keep the wolf from their doors without applying to the ordinary sources of charity, and have thus retained their self-respect. The committee is now facing the end of its resources and is making an urgent appeal for funds in order that the Workroom may be carried on through the coming winter. The need is an urgent one, and The Times heartily commends this very excellent cause.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

OWNERSHIP OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

The Le Devoir, Montreal

The fact that, in seventy-three Ontario municipalities, the Hydro-Electric has reduced its rates and that in fifty other municipalities it has released its clients from the obligation of paying $250,000 which they owed it, in the course of last year, is an indication that the public ownership of public utilities is not always such a bad system as some people claim. As an Ontario paper remarks, this does not mean that the exploitation of public utilities by the state or the municipalities is always the best; but it does prove that this system when administered with intelligence and honesty, often gives better results for the public than would exploitation by private individuals.

The Ontario Grape Crop

The St. Catharines Standard

Grape growers are said to be worried as to the price of grapes this year. It is feared that the big wineries are out to trim the growers down to a price below actual cost of production.

If ever there was a case where a code should be inflicted, a splendid opportunity is here afforded. The stock market shows continued strength in all liquor issues. That is due to the certainty that the Volstead Act in the United States is to be repealed.

The export market will be open to wine products from Canada. The outlook for Canadian wineries is assuredly anything but depressing. A price of $35 to $40 per ton is an essential. If the grape-growing industry is to give a fair return to those engaged in it.

BRITISH FILMS IN THE DOMINION

The Manchester Guardian

In the past the Dominions have not on the whole shown any marked bias in favor of British-made films, but the improvement in the quality of our product seems to be reflected in an extension of their market. During the first six months of this year an increasing number of British pictures have been shown in Canada and in Australia. Many theatres, it is also reported, are reverting to British control. Three leading circuits in New Zealand, which between them control over half a dozen English studios.

This takes in the whole product of British and Dominion films, who have lately made "Bitter Sweet" and a large number of the features of British, Gaumont-Gainsborough, Twickenham Films, Stirling Productions, and London Film Productions. When certain existing arrangements lapse it is understood that these partial contracts will take in all the films made by the studios concerned, with the result that at least 3 per cent of the pictures shown in New Zealand during the coming twelve months will be British. Both "Rome Express" and "The Good Companions" are current successes, and the Gracie Fields talkie "Looking on the Bright Side," played for two weeks at the Tivoli in Toronto and had return bookings both in Vancouver and in New Westminster.

Loose Ends

A weary recital — of doleful things — like the passage of summer — the scandal of the day — the hardy race of Cowichan — the cold grey dawn when the salmon run — and the election campaign in Duncan.

By H. B. V.

GOOD-BYE

AS I PEN these prophetic lines up at our lake, at the end of a melancholy day, the summer lies a-dying. And to find anything more doleful and grisly than the big woods when summer is a-dying, you must search among the murders of the Rue Morgue or the annals of British Columbia politics. Even as I write the robins are making them ready to fly away for another winter. They gather in a great band outside my door there, they chatter incessantly about their traveling plans and in a few hours they will be on their way. The squirrels are busy out there carrying pine cones into the old hollow tree. The great woods are dead and silent. By the end of this paragraph summer is utterly dead.

PRIVATE LIVES

ALL NATURE, indeed, seems to have changed, to have fallen into the grim and desolate mood of winter. For the last three hours I have been listening to two ladies dissecting the habits, the private life and the very soul of Victoria. Hardly anyone in the village, I should imagine, has escaped them. I have seen the roof ripped off almost every Victorian home and the contents ruthlessly ransacked, until I know that the prominent citizen, Mr. So-and-So, refused to buy a new dress for his wife to wear at a recent wedding; that somebody else has been losing far more than she can afford at bridge; that another well-known fellow hasn't paid any bills for a year, that there is going to be a divorce in such-and-such a family, and a baby in another.

It is a solemn thought, very appropriate on this melancholy day when summer lies dead at our feet, that there is really nothing about you entirely hidden from the whole community, nothing so small and unimportant as you to be uninteresting to thousands whom you have never met. It is a solemn thought that somewhere, at this very moment, somebody in Victoria is misrepresenting you; most personal affairs to somebody else. It is disgusting. It is something only women would stoop to. And yet how much more interesting it is to listen to than men's invariable talk of the depression!

SPORT

ALSO ON THIS painful day I have had my first experience in salmon fishing, of rather my first experience in fishing for salmon. God willing it will be my last. Yet it is worth while to go fishing for salmon at this season just once, to see for yourself that the ancient vigor of our race lives on, even in these times.

"It's not necessary," said the man who rents boats at Cowichan Bay, "it's not necessary to go out too early."

"That's fine," I said. "I hate getting up early."

"Quite," said he. "If you're on the water by 5 o'clock you'll be early enough. Of course, if you really want to be early—"

"Come to think of it," I said quickly, "I can't come to-morrow morning. I have an appointment with a dentist." (A callosus lie.)

I almost escaped, but a fellow from Vancouver, who was with me, dragged me back. He told me the man with the boats that of course we'd be there at five this morning. And the queer part of it is that he was right.

Yes, incredible as it may seem to you and unreal as it seems to me to-night, we were there at five this morning. We were up at four and saw the dawn break over the Gulf and were in our boat before it was fully light.

"Apparently," I said, "we're the first out."

The fellow with the boats laughed unpleasantly and pointed across the bay. "There we could make out a large fleet of boats. We were the last to reach the fishing grounds. Your true Cowichan salmon fisher stays out all night."

Forty-one boats trailed up and down the bay, slowly, solemnly, as if it were a religious rite, and in that grey dawn no one spoke, no one smiled, everyone was deadly grim, not with any sign of pleasure but as if only the spring salmon of Cowichan Bay lay between him and starvation. Up and down I rowed, chilled to the marrow, half asleep, cursing myself and fellows who come over from Vancouver to enjoy this great island pastime, this quaint folk custom of our hardy island race.

Only four times did I see anyone catch a fish. Then the man in the stern would reel in his line grimly, without apparent interest, drag the poor scared fish to the boat on tackle strong enough to hold a man-eating shark. When the fish came alongside the other fellow would thrust a brutal gaff into his head, hold him up, hit him on the nose with a club and throw the corpse into the bottom of the boat. I have seen a pound-and-a-half trout provide ten times the fight and sport and then break the tackle. Pound for pound, your salmon is an inferior, cowardly species and your salmon fisher a mere systematic, ruthless killer compared to your trout and your trout angler. Angling? This is murder in the cold grey dawn.

But if anyone tells you that the race is growing soft and weak, take him to Cowichan Bay at 5 a.m., and let him see this tribe of killers at work.

Of course, we caught nothing, and at 9 a.m. the fleet rowed slowly home well satisfied with its morning's slaughter of some ten springs. Never mind! To-morrow the big run may be on and at dawn forty boats will go forth again, solemnly, in great misery, and their occupants will

OLD CUSTOM

AT THE WHARF we met an old fisherman who was restoring his spirit on a respectable jolt of rum. "He turned out to be a philosopher."

"You know," he said, holding up his glass as to view the newly-risen sun through the rum, "it is a great mistake. It is a great mistake that getting thoroughly drunk has gone out of fashion. When a man is thoroughly drunk you get the truth out of him, as we always could in the old days. In vino veritas, my boy, that's the thing. But nowadays you may know a man for years and never seen him except cold sober. You never really know him at all and there is very little truth left in the world. It's a great mistake. Oh, well!" With that he gave the rum a last fond look and downed it at a gulp. But he became quite cheerful after a while and finally, in an excess of optimism, volunteered the opinion that the economic system might not collapse altogether for several years yet and the codges would soon be running. Apparently some of these killers of Cowichan are quite human.

OXFORD

THE MOST curious phenomenon of the Cowichan these days, however, is the election campaign of my good friend, Hugh Savage. I suppose there is no campaign like it anywhere. Mr. Savage is running for the Legislature, with no real desire for office, on an Oxford Group programme. He is actually standing for election in this day and age, in this country, on a principle and as a Christian. The spectacle, so far as I know, is unique.

He thinks there is no way out of this mess except through the enlightenment of the individual man, that any public reform not based on the reform of the ordinary citizen cannot endure and will not save us; that the practical need of the times is that the impractical thing called good will towards men.

The seasoned politicians laugh at this and suggest that Mr. Savage's chances of election would be better if he promised a new courthouse for Duncan or a reduction in taxes. But the strange thing is that Mr. Savage's lonely and passive campaign (he has held no meetings) is attracting more attention outside than any feature of the election. People in eastern Canada, Australia and New Zealand, in England, and the United States, in fact, nothing of the Tories Government or the Liberal Opposition, are watching the campaign in Cowichan and writing to Mr. Savage about it. Possibly if the experiment were tried on a larger scale it would be found, to everyone's amazement, that the ordinary man is interested in something besides courthouses and taxes after all.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

MIRACLES TO-DAY

Men say no miracles are wrought Upon the earth to-day. No heavenly voices, long besought, No manna on the way. But, ah! how strange a thing is this: In hours of care and pain, When years ahead seem an abyss Beyond to-day's bleak plain. Sometimes, as swiftly as the wind Can bear to desert sands, The whispered tale of joys men find In some-faded flower-strewn land. There comes into the darkest night That fills the least with gloom A story, tremulous and bright, As of celestial bloom. Sometimes it floods the being through. Around, below, above, Until it shows earth fair and new. This miracle of love!

APPRECIATION

To the Editor:—May we express, through the columns of your paper, our grateful thanks to the two young men from Discovery Island who, when we were in difficulties in our launch on Saturday, September 2, made every effort to tow us to shore and, finding it impossible, enlisted the aid of the U.S. tanker La Placencia. They saved us from a very trying situation, to say the least.

Hoping the young men concerned will see this note of appreciation.

WOOD CARVING

To the Editor:—Your paper has an article on the subject of wood carving. Readers may be interested to know who the originator of wood carving was, and some of his history.

In my childhood in Sweden, I was neighbor to a man named Andra Doderhult, in Doderhult township, named in honor of him, in the province of Smolander, Sweden.

He was the first man to carve caricatures in wood. He used only one piece of wood.

His name is world-wide known. Many tourists from all countries having visited the little red house with the wood shop in the attic. His daily diet consisted mostly of salt herring and potatoes.

The best known of his models were caricatures of old peasants, of groups at auctions and the ones of most value were the caricatures of kings.

His models to-day are, of course, priceless. He has a great many imitators on his work, in all countries, but to my idea his is the outstanding one. Two of his most intimate friends were Andersen, the great Swedish painter, and Albert Engstrom, a member of the Academy of Arts, Stockholm.

Andra Doderhult died years ago, but his work still lives.

WOMEN'S WORKROOM

To the Editor:—At a recent meeting of the finance committee of the Women's Workroom, the question of the immediate closing of the workroom was taken up and very seriously considered. Finances were very rapidly disappearing, and the possibility of our being able to raise sufficient to carry on seemed doubtful. However, after discussion the committee came to the decision that the closing of the workroom at this time would be nothing short of a calamity; so, after submitting the whole position to the general committee, it was decided to make a very valiant effort to keep the rooms open during the coming winter (which we feel will still be a very difficult one for unemployed women).

In the past we have been able to carry on through the kindness of many friends, and by the efforts of our own committee in staging entertainments of all sorts. We now feel that efforts in that direction have been exhausted, and have come to the conclusion that we shall make an appeal to those who can do so to support us by either monthly subscriptions, or cash donations, and that if we can raise our objective (which is $750 a month for seven months—that is until the 31st March next) we can operate the room and make no further requests for support.

Our cash statement for the twenty-two months from the opening of the fund on October 1, 1931, until July 31 of this year shows that we have handled a total amount of $27,824.84, which has been disbursed as follows:

Wages paid to women.....	$22,932.50
Material and Equipment.....	1,848.63
General expenses for twenty-two months.....	409.96
Salaries to supervisor and assistants.....	1,805.00
Cash on hand, July 31, 1933.....	894.75
Total.....	$27,824.84

Since July 31 our receipts have been very small, indeed, and we now find ourselves practically out of funds.

The wages show that 114,662 hours work had been provided and paid for as at July 31, and since then a further month's employment has been given. We are starting—our

Miss Ina Towner Wed to James C. Reid at Qualicum Beach

The United Church at Qualicum Beach was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday evening when Miss Ina Towner, younger daughter of Mrs. A. Towner, Rose Street, Victoria, and the late Mr. Charles E. Towner, was united in marriage to Mr. James Craig Reid of Qualicum Beach, eldest son of Mr. Hugh Kay Reid and the late Mrs. Reid, Galloway Place, Saltcoats, Scotland. Rev. C. Finlayson read the service.

The decorations in the church, which were unusually pretty, were the handiwork of Mrs. G. F. Watson and Miss Marjorie Watson of Victoria, Miss Jean Miller of Vancouver and Miss Peg Lawton of Winnipeg. Large baskets of early autumn flowers in shades of yellow, mauve and white were banked behind the pulpit, while each window was decked with asters, gladioli and alstroemerias. The bride wore a gown of white, yellow and peach dahlia, mauve asters and wild maidenhair ferns were used on the laced double arch under which the bride party stood.

Given in marriage by Mr. C. P. Barker, an old family friend, the bride looked very pretty in her wedding gown of ivory flat crepe fashioned on long slender lines. The sleeves, which were puffed to the elbows, were finished with long tight cuffs pointed over the wrists. A large bow of the same material, clasped with a diamond buckle, marked the waistline at the back. Her hand-embroidered silk net veil was bound to her head by a laced cap of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and white heather.

Her only attendant was Miss Amy Biddle of Vancouver, who wore a becoming frock of honey-melon Canton crepe, the neckline and cap sleeves being edged with tiny ruffles. The waistline was finished with a girdle of mauve ribbon. She wore a close-fitting turban of the crepe and mauve slippers. Her bouquet was a sheaf of yellow and mauve gladioli tied with mauve tulle.

Mr. Andrew Reid was the best man, and the ushers were Mr. Arnold White of Vancouver and Mr. Harry Phillips. While the register was being signed, Miss Marjorie Watson sang Bohm's beautiful setting of "Still As the Night." Mr. James Miller of Vancouver, president of the organists, played the traditional wedding march.

The reception was held at the Log Cabin, where Mrs. A. Towner assisted the young couple to receive the guests. Her dress was of navy blue Canton crepe, with a hat to match and she wore a corsage of peach baby gladioli and roses. The handsome three-tiered cake centred the table at which the guests sat. Mauve and yellow was used as the color motif for the decoration. The solos were rendered by Miss Jean Miller, Miss Eva Gillan and Mr. James Miller, with Miss M. Watson and Mr. Miller accompanying.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Reid left later for Alberni to board the Princess Norah for their honeymoon trip up the West Coast. Later they will visit in Vancouver and Victoria before returning to live at Qualicum Beach. For traveling, Mrs. Reid wore a grey Canton crepe dress trimmed with blue plaid, a skip-dress coat and a grey turban with matching accessories.

The bride, who has been a popular member of the long distance staff of the B.C. Telephone Company, Victoria, was presented with a cut glass bowl and a cut glass sugar and cream set by her former associates.

Messrs. Ray and Lloyd Briggs were the guests of honor at a very enjoyable farewell party given for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Erb, 1606 Bay Street, on Saturday evening. A hidden treasure hunt and a "bingo" game afforded much amusement during the evening. Music was supplied by T. Johnston at the piano, and Lawrence Knowles at the traps. Refreshments were served early and everyone went down to the boat to wish the two boys "bon voyage" on the first leg of their journey to Wales where they are going with their mother and sister to join their father and to assist their future home. Ray and Lloyd were both born here at Victoria and received their schooling here and their going is felt keenly by the many friends they have made during the years they have lived here. Among the invited guests were the Misses Marjorie Holmwood, Ina Erb, Elsie Barnes, Doreen Peterbridge, Ellen McCaghey, Edith Barnes, Annie Jessamin, Edna Coates, Patricia Peterbridge, Helen Anderson, Doris Bennett, Margaret Maxwell and the Messrs. nourished Children

At a well-attended meeting of the Dr. O. M. Jones Chapter held yesterday evening, several activities to be held during the winter months were discussed. The milk fund treasurer reported that the lists of undernourished children in the various city schools would be prepared by the nurses as soon as possible, and that in all probability these lists would be larger than in previous years. It is the hope of the members that funds will be forthcoming to make a continuance of the supplying of milk to these children. It is with this in mind that the Dr. O. M.

TWO HELENS
DO NOT SPEAKIn Fact, One Tennis Star Will Not Ride in Same Car
With the OtherBy JULIA BLANSHARD
Special Correspondence of The Victoria
Daily Times

Paris (By Mail)—Mrs. Helen Willis Moody's defaulting to Helen Jacobs, instead of letting her win the Forest Hills tennis match, has furnished Paris tennis fans with plenty of gossip. They rehearse innumerable incidents of the animosity existing between the two California stars. It was recalled that when the two Helens were here in 1930, with Lot and Van Ryn, Helen Willis not only would not speak to Helen Jacobs, but would even ride in the same auto with her.

A fact never mentioned in any French paper nor spoken of publicly by anybody is that the great Gochet has heart trouble. The reason why he refused at first to play in the Davis Cup matches. It is understood that this summer is positively the last time that France will see her idol play.

You can tell visitors from over the ocean, because the majority of them have "Anthony Adverse" under their arms. One thing you miss here in Paris is beggars. It is only at churches that you encounter them at all this summer in France. The loveliest French chateau near Paris owned by any foreigner is Gertrude Atherton's, on the edge of the city.

STROLL AND LEARN

You can see Paris, shop and eat without knowing a word of French. But you cannot get anywhere without a good pair of dependable walking feet. Stroll and loiter—that's the way to learn Paris' fascination. The majority of tourists take one night off to go to Les Halles, the great central markets. Get there around 2:30 a.m. and you view more big truck horses hitched to loads of cauliflower and other vegetables than you see at home in a whole year. For two hours there is tremendous bustle, chickens crowing, sheep bleating, restaurant shoppers bargaining, men and women rushing about in those blue denim or brown smocks, some in carpet slippers, some with their heads tied in handkerchiefs, and always enter and leave via the kitchen and sit quietly upstairs, to elude auto-graph hounds.

Where the stars dine. Across Paris from here is the Viking off the Champs Elysee, where Gloria Swanson, Ramon Novarro, Douglas Fairbanks and Rex Ingram go for Norwegian hors d'oeuvres. Reindeer filets are another specialty of the house. The maître d'hôtel vouchsafed the information that Marlene Dietrich has come several times this summer.

WELFARE YACHT
HAS BEEN SOLD

Nanaimo, Sept. 6.—The schooner Lady Royal, sunk in a bay at Decourcy Island and once owned by Brother X—called leader of the Aquarian Foundation at Cedar-by-the-Sea, has been sold to Mr. Colson, machinist of Cowichan, and will be used as a tender to repair tugs of the fishing fleet that meet with mishaps at sea.

Sister
MARY'S
KITCHENHERE'S A WAY TO USE SWEET
POTATOES FOR DESSERT

By SISTER MARY

The fact that sweet potatoes live up to their name and contain a large amount of sugar makes them a splendid energy-producing food.

Compared with Irish potatoes, the food value is higher in fat and carbohydrates but lower in protein. One-half a baked sweet potato provides 100 calories, while one whole, medium sized Irish potato is required to furnish the hundred-calory portion. Both sweet and Irish potatoes are good carriers of fat, since their palatability depends much on a generous seasoning of butter.

HIGH VITAMIN CONTENT

Vitamin A, so essential for growth and the building of new tissues, is present in sweet potatoes in considerable quantity. One table rates the vitamin "unit" in one ounce of Irish potato at eight and in the same amount of sweet potato at 200. Vitamin B and C are found in small amounts.

When sweet potatoes have been used in place of white potatoes, a dessert that is not very sweet should be chosen. Fresh fruit, fruit whip, gelatin puddings and ice cream suitable endings for meals.

Keep in mind the perishability of sweet potatoes when you buy them. They are very susceptible to temperature and dampness and spoil quickly. Calculate your needs and purchase accordingly in order to avoid waste.

Twice baked sweet potatoes are delicious and simple to make. After baking they are cut in halves lengthwise and the pulp is scooped out and mashed. Season well with salt, pepper, lots of butter and cream to make moist and beat "BRIT" light and fluffy. Chopped nuts can be added if liked. Pile mixture lightly into the shells and brush over the top with melted butter. Return to oven to brown tops and make very hot.

SWEETS, FRENCH FRIED French fried sweet potatoes are good, too. They are prepared and cooked just like white ones.

You can use sweet potatoes for desserts. Boil them with the skins on, then peel and mash. Season with butter and a little salt and beat in milk to make moist, adding 1 tablespoon brown sugar and 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon to each cup of potato pulp. Turn into individual molds and bake twenty-five minutes. Top with marshmallows about five minutes before removing from oven and serve warm with or without cream. This is a good dessert for small children.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast—Ripe plums, cereal cooked with dates, cream, crisp bacon, toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked cheese and bread, creamed green peppers, blueberry muffins, sweet potato pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Lamb steak with stewed apricots, sweet corn in cream, stewed okra and tomatoes, sweet potato and coconut pudding, milk, coffee.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

BE FAMILIAR WITH YOUR CHILD'S SCHOOL PROBLEMS

Though most children love school, there are children who hate it, and develop mysterious ailments early in the morning that necessitate their staying at home. It is a situation which irritates parents who have no sympathy with the sensitive child's school problems.

NONSENSE

The handling of such a situation demands infinite tact, but seldom receives it. The bewildered parent turns to anger and force to solve the difficulty. "Now there's nothing at all wrong with you, so don't pretend you have a sore throat. Your sore throat will all be gone by nine-thirty. You just don't want to go to school. Now, why don't you? Isn't it nice to learn things? Aren't you happy that we can send you to school? Just get up and hustle. I'm tired of this nonsense about being sick."

The child may get up and drag himself to school unwillingly, but this does not make the duty any easier or pleasant. The difficulty is buried somewhere in the school situation.

FIRST-HAND OBSERVATION

It might be well for the mother to visit school frequently and take note of what goes on. She may not see all there is to see, but she may stumble on to something that may help her to uncover the source of the sore spot. Is her child dressed differently from the other group? Is he so far superior to them that all of school is a huge bore which he resents and escapes by means of any flimsy excuse? Is there a personal antagonism between the child and his teacher?

A change from one room to another, from one school to another, coupled with some effort to help the child with his difficulties in order to make him fit into the group so that he is happy are all possible solutions. It is a task which demands that both the parent and the teacher work together harmoniously, and not pull in different directions with the distraught child between.

The child who must pretend an illness, who vomits his breakfast, who suffers from morning headaches may have a real physical condition needing correction. It is likely, however, that these are merely childish subterfuges erected to protect the child from his unhappy school existence.

HER MARRIAGE IS ANNULLED

Calgary, Sept. 6.—Annie Dutchak of Calgary has had her marriage to Bert McCray annulled after she explained in the Alberta Supreme Court here she had married McCray innocently, unaware he was a married man.

Annie told how she had discovered her spouse was a married man with two children when they arrived in Winnipeg. She said they followed the races and that McCray was a "race-course man." McCray became angry when she learned she was aware of his first marriage, she said. The woman told the court she was forced to take "a drugged drink" and when she awoke in the morning she found $200 of her savings had gone and so had McCray, whom the law is now searching for on charges of bigamy, drugging and theft.

First, second and third prizes will be offered in each class, making twelve prizes in all. It is announced that all flowers to be exhibited must be in not later than 10 o'clock Thursday morning. ASHAMED OF HER FIGURE

Husband Persuaded Her to Take Kruschen

By following her husband's advice, this woman made a tremendous improvement in her appearance—she actually took off 32 lbs. of her excess fat. Telling of her experience, she writes:—

"A year ago I was troubled with rheumatism, nervousness, and other complaints. And I got so fat that I was ashamed of my figure. I was persuaded by my husband to take Kruschen salts. Before I began, I weighed 161 lbs. After taking Kruschen for a short time the rheumatism was less painful, my nerves got stronger, and my step lighter. Then I knew that Kruschen was doing me good, so I persevered with it, and got my weight down to 129 lbs., a reduction of 32 lbs. of unwanted fat. I am not boasting when I say that I feel younger and more active, have a much better figure, and am healthier than I have been for years." (Mrs. J. S.)

Kruschen is a blend of six mineral salts which assist the internal organs to throw off each day those waste products that would otherwise accumulate in the form of fatty tissue. (Adv.)

Uncle Wiggily's Funny Fall

(By H. R. GARIS)

Around and around and round rode Uncle Wiggily, Mr. Whitewash and Mr. Stubbail on the whirling at the sea-shore. The whirling was a merry-go-round on the back of the Old Sea Dog who was chasing his tail but never getting hold of it. That's what made the merry-go-round turn.

"How do you like it," asked Uncle Wiggily of the white bear.

"It's just fine and dandy," answered Mr. Whitewash.

"How do you like it, Mr. Stubbail?" asked Uncle Wiggily. Mr. Stubbail was riding on a wooden lion. Uncle Wiggily was on an elephant, and Mr. Whitewash was on a tiger. "How do you like it?" asked the rabbit gentleman again of the brown bear gentleman, for Mr. Stubbail had not made any answer.

"He can't answer you when he's playing the mouth organ," said Mr. Whitewash.

The brown bear began to play the mouth organ. Old Sea Dog began to chase his tail again. Mr. Stubbail played the mouth organ. When he had finished his tune he took the organ from his mouth and said:

"I think it's great. But I thought, Mr. Longears, you made this merry-go-round for your little bunnies."

"I did," said Uncle Wiggily. "I made it so I wouldn't have to give them so many pennies to ride on the board walk whirling. They are down there now. But they will soon be back here asking for more pennies and then I can tell them they may ride on my merry-go-round for nothing. In that way I shall save a lot of money."

"Good!" said the brown bear.

"Give us another tune, Stubby!" called Mr. Whitewash.

The brown bear began to play the mouth organ. Old Sea Dog began to chase his tail again. Mr. Stubbail played the mouth organ. When he had finished his tune he took the organ from his mouth and said:

"That was a funny fall, Uncle Wiggily!" laughed Baby Bunt.

"Wasn't it?" said Mr. Longears. Then he saw that the Old Sea Dog was chasing his tail. "That's what made the merry-go-round turn," he said.

All at once, down on the sandy beach, heard above the music of the mouth organ the merry shouts and calls of forty-seven sixteen rabbit children.

"Here they come!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

Toward the merry-go-round came hopping the bunnies who had just finished having rides on the board walk whirling.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" exclaimed Baby Bunt. "Where did you get it?" She was so excited that she nearly used more baby talk than she was allowed, but she thought in time and stopped.

"Where is the merry-go-round?" asked Jingle.

"Isn't it beautiful?" murmured her twin sister Jangle.

"Mr. Whitewash made it," said Uncle Wiggily. "And I got Old Sea Dog to put it on his back and chase his tail. That's what makes the merry-go-round whirl."

"Don't forget the music!" spoke Mr. Stubbail.

"Oh, yes, I nearly forgot, spoke Mr. Longears. 'Mr. Stubbail plays the mouth organ to make music for us. Show them, Stubby.'

"And whirl about some more. Sea Dog!" said Mr. Whitewash. "Then the rabbit children may see what a fine whirling they are going to have. Chase your tail, Sea Dog."

Again the Sea Dog, who had stopped turning the merry-go-round as the rabbit children rushed up the beach, started chasing his tail. Faster and faster he whirled. Louder and louder played Mr. Stubbail on his mouth organ.

"Whooop-ee! Whooop-ee! Whooop-ee!" shouted Uncle Wiggily getting all excited because he thought what fine fun and jolly rides his little bunnies were soon going to have. "Whooop-ee!"

Uncle Wiggily forgot to hold fast to the big ears of the wooden merry-go-round elephant on whose back he was riding. He would have held fast but, as he didn't, off he was thrown, out across the sand and he fell right down on Nurse Jane's fuzzy wuzzy.

The muskrat lady housekeeper was coming down to the beach to see if the bunny children were all right and Uncle Wiggily landed right on her.

"Oh!" grunted Nurse Jane.

"Excuse me," said Uncle Wiggily politely.

But luckily Nurse Jane and the bunny gentleman fell on a bunch of sea weed so neither of them was in

He fell on Nurse Jane

This was true enough. For in order to have music for Uncle Wiggily's merry-go-round, Mr. Stubbail played the mouth organ. When he had finished his tune he took the organ from his mouth and said:

"I think it's great. But I thought, Mr. Longears, you made this merry-go-round for your little bunnies."

"Where is the merry-go-round?" asked Jingle.

"Isn't it beautiful?" murmured her twin sister Jangle.

"Mr. Whitewash made it," said Uncle Wiggily. "And I got Old Sea Dog to put it on his back and chase his tail. That's what makes the merry-go-round whirl."

"Don't forget the music!" spoke Mr. Stubbail.

"Oh, yes, I nearly forgot, spoke Mr. Longears. 'Mr. Stubbail plays the mouth organ to make music for us. Show them, Stubby.'

"And whirl about some more. Sea Dog!" said Mr. Whitewash. "Then the rabbit children may see what a fine whirling they are going to have. Chase your tail, Sea Dog."

Again the Sea Dog, who had stopped turning the merry-go-round as the rabbit children rushed up the beach, started chasing his tail. Faster and faster he whirled. Louder and louder played Mr. Stubbail on his mouth organ.

"Whooop-ee! Whooop-ee! Whooop-ee!" shouted Uncle Wiggily getting all excited because he thought what fine fun and jolly rides his little bunnies were soon going to have. "Whooop-ee!"

Uncle Wiggily forgot to hold fast to the big ears of the wooden merry-go-round elephant on whose back he was riding. He would have held fast but, as he didn't, off he was thrown, out across the sand and he fell right down on Nurse Jane's fuzzy wuzzy.

The muskrat lady housekeeper was coming down to the beach to see if the bunny children were all right and Uncle Wiggily landed right on her.

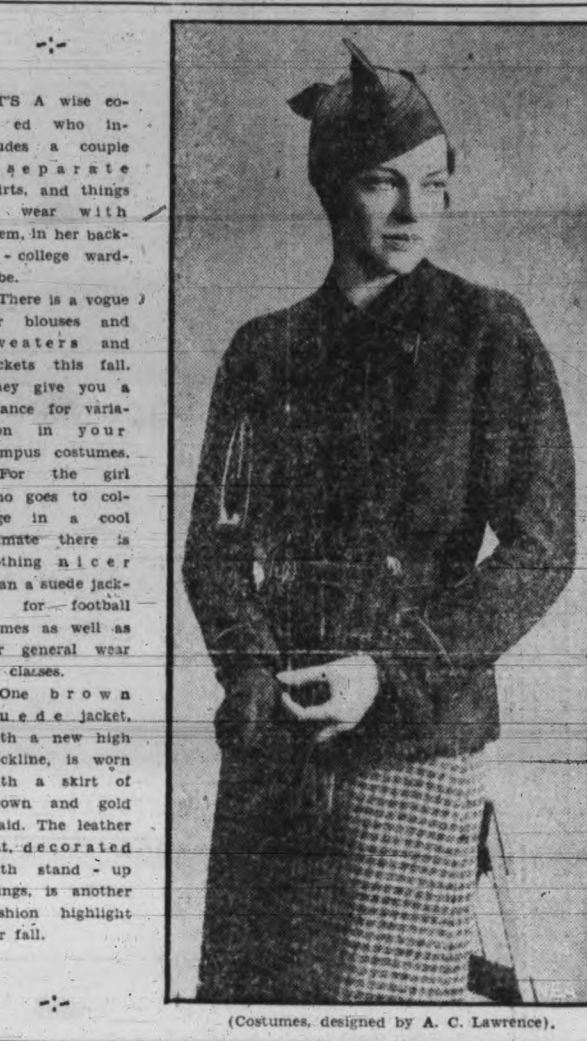

"Oh!" grunted Nurse Jane.

"Excuse me," said Uncle Wiggily politely.

But luckily Nurse Jane and the bunny gentleman fell on a bunch of sea weed so neither of them was in

Suede Jacket's Ideal for Wear About Campus—And to Football Games as Well

(Costumes, designed by A. C. Lawrence)

It's a wise idea who includes a couple of separate skirts, and things to wear with them, in her back-to-college wardrobe.

There is a vogue for blouses and sweaters and jackets this fall. They give you a chance for variation in your campus costumes.

For the girl who goes to college in a cool climate there is nothing nicer than a suede jacket for football games as well as for general wear to classes.

One brown suede jacket, with a new high neckline, is worn with a skirt of brown and gold plaid. The leather hat, decorated with stand-up wings, is another fashion highlight for fall.

The least hurt and soon they were up again.

A Bell, Chalmers, spent the week-end here with relatives.

J. Delaney and son, Hughie, have returned to Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Delaney, who spent the week-end in Victoria, are expected to return to Vancouver.

The Shining Talent

By ELEANOR EARLY
(Copyright, 1929, by NEA Service Inc.)

"That's all right. How long do you think it takes to chuck a clean shirt in a bag. Listen now, Sweetheart, get to bed as soon as you can, and get a little sleep. You must be all shot, you poor little kid. Why don't you get hold of Bob Newton?"

"Bob's here now. Bob and Rita."

"That's good," he approved. "They'll take Zip off your hands. Take good care of my girl, won't you, Molly? Do it for me, Sweetheart. Don't stay up all night. Let Bob take care of things. Will you be able to sleep, dear?"

"Oh, yes," she lied. "I will. And I'll meet your train in the morning. Hurry now, or you'll miss it. Listen, dear, can you hear me? I love you."

"And I love you!" he cried. "More than ever, Molly. I was thinking about you when the phone rang. I don't ever do anything but think about you, I guess. It's wonderful to hear your voice. Do you honestly love me as much as you used to?"

"Mere," she assured him. "I'll tell you to-morrow. Don't miss your train. Goodnight, dear."

She slipped the receiver slowly in place. One of her dearest friends was dead. And she could still talk about love! There was something wrong with her! Something cold and heartless? Were other people like that?

"To-morrow" her heart kept singing.

"To-morrow!"

But she thrust the anticipation from her. And conformed, instead, a vision of Ruth.

Bob and Rita took Zip home with them. And Molly, when they had gone, found the memory book of her Freshman year with all its best-remembered memories of Ruth. For she and Ruth had roomed together that year, and that was the year Zip gave Ruth the moonstone she called her engagement ring. All night Molly sat with the book across her knees.

When dawn came, she put coffee on and while it was boiling she took a shower. Then she quietly slipped on her nightgown, and slipped into bed to sleep, but to relax, so that Jack would not know she had not slept all the night.

When his train came, she was waiting.

Horoscope

The stars incline, but do not compel.
"THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1933

Adverse planetary aspects rule strongly to-day, according to astrology. It is a time to watch one's step in all important matters.

Women should be especially cautious while the planetary government continues that they may be foolishly susceptible to flattery.

Under this sway girls should avoid romance, since it is likely to be unfortunate while this rule prevails.

The seers stress the fact that in the general process of readjustment, financial and social and political, women will find their right place in the national scheme of things. Warning is given by astrologers that the new freedom for women has gone too far and they foretell a return to old-fashioned ideas including religion.

This may be an unlucky day for aviation as well as automobile accidents are indicated as likely to multiply while this malefic rule of the stars is present.

There is a sign read as indicating a growing tendency of the public mind to indulge in criticism of heads of business as well as government executives. The wise will abstain from unfair judgment.

The evening of this day may be unfavorable for men who are in prominent positions. An accident or sudden death is foretold for a public servant who has gained fame.

Astrologers declare that in the coming weeks great progress toward prosperity will be made, but they foresee setbacks as well as advancement now and then. The wise will look far ahead and thus rejoice.

France may be the scene of remarkable crimes, for a malefic sign is discerned. Trade with other countries may fall off as the autumn advances.

Unexpected changes in the French foreign policies are prognosticated. Statesmen with liberal sympathies will improve international relations, it is forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the assure of a year of romance and pleasant holidays. Subjects of this sign reach the heights of fame.

Georges Louis, Leclerc Buffon, famous French naturalist, was born on this day, 1707. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Queen Elizabeth, 1533, famous ruler of Britain, and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, 1836, British statesman.

SIDNEY CALF TAKES PRIZE

Iain Wilson's Exhibit at Vancouver Is Judged Best in Class

The value of boys' and girls' calf work has been well proved by the success of Iain Wilson, son of Capt. C. R. Wilson, "Heather Farm," Sidney, a member of the Sanich Jersey Calf Club at the Canadian Pacific Exhibition in Vancouver.

Iain, who has been a successful calf club member for the last two years, benefited by his experience, and chose a calf for this year's Calf Club, which he fitted together with the young herd sire of his father, exhibiting them at the Vancouver Exhibition.

Word has just arrived that Iain's calf took first honors in the boys' and girls' calf class, and second place in the open class of fifteen entries. The young bull won second place in the strong yearling class and the reserve junior championship.

The young bull, "Belle's Nana's Oxford," is sired by the outstanding imported bull, "Oxford Sultan of Oxford," sire of "La Sentes Oxford Sultan," winner of the bull and progeny prize over the Island of Jersey, "Oxford Day Dream," grand champion at the Toronto Royal in 1932, "Oxford Oxford Glory," junior champion Toronto Royal, 1925, "Glamorgan Aggie," winner of six grand championships.

The dam is the well-known imported cow, "Sultan's Gem," four times grand champion at Victoria and Vancouver, first prize two-year-old Toronto Royal, 1923, and twice won the R.O.P. class at the Pacific International at Portland.

The young calf, "Oxford's Sybil's Pride," is by the same sire, "Oxford Sultan of Oxford," her dam being the imported cow, "Grainville Pride III," with a record of 641 pounds butterfat, and the daughter of "Sybil's Gambo III."

Purchase of a fifteen-plate battery for the municipal fire truck, at a cost of $24.38, was authorized by the Esquimalt Council yesterday evening.

PARIS WOMEN APE MAY WEST

Julia Finds Snappy Film Has Great Effect on Current Vogue in French Capital

By JULIA BLANCHARD
Written From Paris for The Victoria Daily Times

Paris (By Mail).—Films are having a tremendous influence on European women's appearance. May West in her "She Done Him Wrong," which is called "Lady Lou" here, has taken Paris by storm. . . . Feather boas, swishing lampshade skirts, handsome costume jewelry and that inimitable undulating walk simulated by Paris women attest her popularity. . . .

Lines stand outside the movie house running "Lady Lou" . . . It and "Cavalcade" are the most popular motion pictures in Paris.

English language newspapers shown in Europe all have translations of the pictures are through on the screen. . . . Talkies in the Chicago Century of Progress are particularly popular.

JOSEPHINE NEARS A RECORD

Paris newspapers are still flowery in their appreciation of Harlem's colored Josephine Baker (pronounced here as Ba-Caire) who will soon make her 400th continuous crowded performance at the Casino de Paris. Josephine came here with the first colored jazz band eight years ago, to do the Black Bottom. . . . She stayed on, learned French and applied herself with superhuman zeal to developing other types of dancing. . . . To-day she is given tremendous acclaim. . . . She speaks French as few foreigners learn to speak it with a concise, almost-perfect Paris accent. . . . She has had her voice trained and though it is a soft little voice, it is sweet and musical and she has sense enough not to strain it. . . . She has studied dramatics and in this present production, she runs the gamut of emotion, from doing her animated famous "strut" to a little skit where she shows real emotional ability. . . . She works day and night perfecting herself. . . . At Saturday's evening performance, which is the night that the middle class attends, "Bravo, Josephine" sounded again and again, with ringing applause from all sides when she sang, when she danced, when she led her melodious, rhythmic Josephine Baker jazz orchestra, and when she did her dramatic skits. . . .

All kinds of knock-knocks are named after her, attesting her widespread popularity. . . . Dots, braces, jets, buckles, perfume, lamps, ash trays, glove boxes, handkerchiefs. . . . All reproducing little, golden-colored, extremely animated Josephine herself. . . . In this production, she wears something new in jewelry, which will undoubtedly be copied. . . . It is an ornate, striking bracelet, which starts at a great star ring of diamonds on her second left finger, extends as two small flexible chains of brilliant to the middle of the back of her left hand, where a smaller diamond star appears, then the chain widens to join an entire half cuff of diamonds in formal design which extends clear to her elbow, on the upper side of her arm.

VAN LOON WRITING NEW BOOK

Hendrik Willem Van Loon has been literally overlooking Paris from the high, sunny balcony of a suite on the top floor of a secluded Left Bank hotel. He has the page proofs of his new Voltaire story book, "Elephant Up a Tree"—being the adventures of Sir John, the elephant who was knighted for rescuing the Prince of Wales from a crocodile. . . . "Jimmie" Van Loon's wife, is bound for Holland to close up the famous house on the Kade at Veere. . . . Hendrik is leaving soon for Bad Gastein, in Austria, to take the cure which, he says, is guaranteed to make him feel like sixteen.

CHANGES IN PARIS

The Champs Elysees has changed some. The American Embassy, at the corner of La Place de la Concord, is nearing completion, an imposing white structure. Four new Lalique glass fountains adorn the Rond Point. Two of them are exquisite glass fern fronds which send up lacy sprays of water. The other two are lovely glass birds which take on a spectrum of color as the sun hits them. Flower beds surround all four, and the green of the grass and trees beyond enhances their beauty. . . . One new sidewalk cafe has opened, just two blocks below Fouchet's. The French blue and white umbrellas over the little tables resemble pagodas. . . . The place is crowded with visitors. You can tell them by their printed suits and their colorful costumes. French women are wearing all white, or all black or a smart combination of black and white.

To Every Advertiser in Canada

The Most Responsive and richly concentrated markets of Canada are the cities where DAILY NEWSPAPERS are published

They contain 35.25 per cent. of the customers and do 65.57 per cent. of the retail trade of the whole Dominion. The new census figures reveal that 53.71 per cent. of Canada's population is urban.

These cities where daily newspapers are published are surrounded by supplementary—and just as desirable—markets, namely, suburban towns and country.

The Daily Newspapers have always given the advertiser a wonderful contact with the Canadian market from coast to coast. During this autumn and winter, when the business tide will be slowly and steadily rising, the newspapers will stand out pre-eminently from all other advertising media.

Where daily newspapers are published there is a yearly per capita buying power of $503—almost double the national average, which is $274.

The census shows that sales, as made in daily newspaper cities, are as follow:—

- 76.71 per cent. of clothing and apparel.
- 67.30 per cent. of drugs and toiletries.
- 64.35 per cent. of food.
- 60.84 per cent. of automotive sales.
- 58.50 per cent. of general merchandise.

These daily newspaper markets are outstanding, and the roads to them are clearly marked. The local newspapers, metropolitan or provincial, give daily and intimate access to the homes where this buying power is massed.

Does your selling plan need the concentration of special sales effort on specially desirable territories?

Are you trying to acquire the widespread support of dealer and consumer goodwill?

Do you need speed, coverage and control with economy of expenditure?

The Daily Newspapers in Canada help you as no other medium can

Health is half of success

Few men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red and green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

THE CONVERSION LOAN

To the Editor:—Ottawa is now prepared to float a conversion loan. What a wonderful stroke of financial genius! Our banks, through legislative action, are well supplied with inflated paper to further mule the people of Canada. Comparisons are odious, but let us compare the actions of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bennett. Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Hoover allied to the gold standard—while other countries were endeavoring to establish an international trade parity and a stabilization of exchange—brought about an intolerable condition which should not exist in such richly endowed countries as the United States and Canada. The United States, riding themselves of the Hoover doctrine, elected Mr. Roosevelt, who immediately waved aside all banking shibboleths, issued inflated money, almost to the verge of radicalism. Mr. Bennett is about to issue a conversion loan. One year ago—and it required no financial wizard, merely the severance of the alliance that would seem to exist as between the executive at Ottawa and the executive of the Canadian Bankers Association—if Mr. Bennett had issued $1,000,000,000 of Canadian bank notes, $500,000,000 for debt reduction, which would have immediately released over $25,000,000 from fixed charges, and the rest would have reduced our national debt by that amount in fifteen years without a single dollar outlay, and incidentally thrown $500,000,000 on the market. The other $500,000,000 could have been loaned to the provinces at 2 per cent, relieving them of about $30,000,000 per year fixed charges, and enable them to meet the present condition without resorting to usurious borrowings, while the 2 per cent interest would allow Ottawa to take a larger share of our responsibilities. This would in no way impair our solvency; rather fortify it. Mr. McKenna, the chairman of one of our largest banking institutions, stated the other day, that under conditions, inflation was not only permissible but almost imperative. The chairman of one of our own banks not long ago voiced the same but feared it might lead to uncontrolled inflation.

This, Mr. Editor, is not any communistic vagary, as I consider communism the last and only refuge of those two inseparable twins, inefficiency and failure, while their leaders are ready to be anything in the ecstasy of being ever with their empty exhibitions of mental vivacity. Mr. Bennett undertook the task of stabilizing exchange by a bonus. No wonder we have the C.C.E.'s, the World Be's, the What Not's and the Independents on every corner, trying to walk the political tightrope of chance, without a balancing pole, to reach the haven of their selfish desires.

KILLING OF SEALS

To the Editor:—Victoria newspapers of September 2 and 3 respectively, contain letters from the secretary of the S.P.C.A., relative to the killing of seals. He says (in part) that "the fur sealers of the Pacific have been unjustly blamed for cruel and barbarous practices..." and in extension of this statement he quotes an article appearing in a recent issue of Our Dumb Animals, an excellent magazine published in Boston, U.S.A.

The article from which Mr. Sherwood quotes, discredits some information which we are told, appeared in an English publication, on the ground that the particular and very terrible episode described, occurred nearly 200 years ago.

This article has not any bearing on present day conditions, but the fact remains that various humane organizations throughout the world—and I am in direct correspondence with many of them—are still much concerned as to the methods employed in the slaughter of seals.

I had thought that the sealing industry was associated with other countries than the United States, such as Uruguay, Columbia and Soviet Russia. Some months ago I wrote to The Hague asking for more definite information than that in the article under criticism, and received a letter dated June 22, from H. Knoest, in which he says:

"The Department of Fishery of the U.S.A. . . . acknowledges that the animals are killed by means of a blow with a club on the head. It is said that this blow is given on the place where the skull is very thin, but you will easily understand that this is practically impossible. . . . The Norwegian Fishery Department has now ordered that the older seals will be shot and the younger struck by club. . . . Protests have already been lodged and an objection is being sent from The Hague, which is to be handed over immediately to the Dutch ambassador at Washington, D.C.

In Miss Ellis Higginson's book, "Alaska" (Macmillan and Company) occurs a description of seal killing which is too horrible to quote here.

We may agree that humanitarianism has made definite advances in the last century and that there is yet room for improvement. Those working for such reforms are, of course, quite able to appreciate the difficulties which they must inevitably encounter because commercial enterprises and humanitarian deals are not always in accord, but I am sure that they are not anxious either to overstate or understate any case.

The secretary of the S.P.C.A., in his concluding paragraph, says: "That suffer as many of the seals may, greatly exaggerated stories have been circulated by people who have not known the facts." Personally, I am of the opinion that efforts to improve conditions should not be minimized. Evidently some European societies have acquired themselves with conditions.

CITY RELIEF

To the Editor:—It would seem by the remarks passed in the City Council chamber last Friday that the relief situation is to be taken out for an airing. According to our mayor the administration of relief is costing $30,000 a year. How many people in Victoria really know anything about relief conditions and its administration? I venture to say that apart from those whose business brings relief in direct touch with the relief matters, not 5 per cent of our population know anything about this question. For the information of the public let it be known that a married man with no family is given five days work at $3 per day. With this amount he is supposed to clothe and feed himself and his wife for the month. The reader can form some opinion as to how much money this man and woman can allow themselves for the innumerable other necessities outside of food and clothing.

If a man on relief hustles the odd 100 and earns a few dollars in this way, he must report this fact to the power that be. He is then allowed to retain the munificent amount of 25 per cent of what he earns—the balance of 75 per cent being deducted from his relief allowance. For example, John Smith has not lost his ambition and by getting odd jobs during the month earns $10. This $10 added to what he receives through relief channels would give him a total of $25 for the month—not much it is true, but a lot better than $15—but, instead of getting $25, John finds that of the $10 he has earned by his own efforts he is only allowed $2.50, so that instead of $25, which he should have, he only receives $17.50. John immediately says, "What's the use of trying to find work anyway? If I'm honest and report what I've done I'm docked 75 per cent. If I don't report this extra work there is the threat that if it is ever found out I made this extra money I'm cut off relief altogether—wot the 'ell Bill, wot the 'ell."

Give the unemployed men a chance to look for work and keep what he makes and there would soon be less relief needed.

The present method puts a premium on dishonesty and shiftlessness. Why could not a decent scale be arranged so that a married man without family be allowed to augment his relief allowance up to $40 per month if he can? Is $40 too much on which to live decently? Allow proportionately more for the man with children so that if possible a man with three or four children to support could earn up to $60 or $65 per month without any fear that the larger portion of his extra earnings would be deducted from his relief allowance.

If a scale such as this were allowed, there would be a saving of money on seeking work and a great many would find enough to do so that they would gladly dispense with relief voluntarily—these men are not on relief because they like it. With regard to the administration of relief, let it be arranged that these men go to work just as they would for an ordinary business firm, who, rather than lay off their force, have decided to give all employees part time work until conditions right themselves once more—the foreman on the job keeps the men's time which is turned into the timekeeper in the regular way, the timekeeper makes up the pay sheets and at the end of the week a cheque is handed to each man.

Phil Edwards seeks relief to visit the relief "bull pen" nine or ten times every month to find out where and when they go to work, to say nothing of the innumerable other visits some of them have to make on account of a misunderstanding or mistake. Let the men receive the relief allowance every week instead of in one sum. For instance, John Smith would receive his $15 in three weekly cheques of $5 and one cheque of $2. By paying the relief allowance in this way a certain amount of money would come into the house regularly and do away with the feast and famine policy which is carried on under the present method.

The writer's endeavors in organizing the Co-operative Land League has brought him into very close touch with the families on relief, and I would say that the condition is intolerable and fast becoming desperate. There will be more call on the Social Service and like societies this coming winter than ever before in our history, and the situation will need to be handled with a great deal more understanding and sympathy than is now the case.

Your for better conditions for the unemployed.

L. BARRYMORE AT DOMINION

"The Stranger's Return" Feature Picture: "Headline
Shooter" Second Film

Earthly as the loamy soil of old Iowa, is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of "The Stranger's Return," the new Phil Strong novel of rural life, which opened to-day at the Dominion Theatre.

King-Vidor has again given the screen a living drama in this unusual film. The breath of life has been instilled in his graphic characters. All the rugged beauty and simplicity of farm life is as real as the scope of photography permits.

There have been fine performances credited to Lionel Barrymore before, notably that of the old lawyer in "A Free Soul," which marked his return to acting a few years ago. But here Barrymore has reached his greatest glory. His portrayal of the eighty-five-year-old patriarch who refused to die until he sees his beloved farm in kind hands, is immortal. He looks the part, acts it, lives it. Bucolic in quaint philosophy, glorified by toll, his Grandpa Starr is a characterization to go down in historic archives.

The second picture is "Headline Shooter," RKO-Radio Pictures' glorification of the newspaper cameraman with William Gargan and Frances Dee.
While recounting the colorful career of a photographer, "Headline Shooter," the cameraman hero "shooting" the spectacular current events as part of the background of the melodrama.

CAPITOL THEATRE

The motion picture's influence on the stage has been at least as great as the legitimate theatre's influence on the screen.

Edmund Lowe, who has played on both stage and screen, is the authority for that statement. He made it during an interview between scenes of production of "Her Bodyguard," a B. P.
Schubert picture for Paramount, at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Ralph Bellamy, who plays an important role as city editor in James Cagney's latest starring vehicle for Warner Bros., now showing at the Empire Theatre, ran away from home to go on the stage. He is a relative of the late Edward Bellamy who wrote
"Looking Backward" and of Eben E.
Rexford who composed "Silver Threads Among the Gold." He has one of the most important roles as city editor in

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Those who see Universal's exciting
The Fiddlin' Buckaroo, starring Ken Maynard, at the Columbia Theatre this evening, will probably recognize Gloria Sheik, who plays the feminine lead, as the girl who only a few years ago was acclaimed most beautiful radio artist in the United States. Miss Sheik won that distinction when she was an air entertainer for the Columbia Broadcasting System out of New York, by a popular vote from all over the U.S.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Barbara Leonard, who was graduated to motion pictures from the Los Angeles and Hollywood stage, has the role of Janet Gaynor's maid in "Adorable," romantic Fox Film comedy with musical numbers in which Miss Gaynor shares honors with Harry Garat, the international star.

Miss Leonard, a native of San Francisco, attended boarding school in Switzerland and studied art in Italy before becoming an actress.

Herbert Smith and Muriel and C. Aubrey
Smith are prominently cast in "Adorable," now at the Playhouse Theatre.

Daily Health Service

VITAMINS IN FOODS

Milk, Eggs, Fruit Juices, Vegetables and Meats Rate High in Health-giving Elements

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

If the average person takes a pint to a quart of milk daily, one egg, a half glass of orange or tomato juice, one or two vegetables, either fresh or canned, and meat (including liver, kidney, heart or sweetbreads at least once weekly), he will probably not have to worry about getting a sufficient quantity of vitamins.

These are the substances which are richest in the vitamins now known. It is well established that orange juice and tomato juice are the best available sources of Vitamin C. It has now been fairly well established that orange juice, for its Vitamin C, aids the growth of the teeth and gums. Vitamin D and A are both found most richly in cod liver oil but are also present in egg yolk. The banana is rather rich in Vitamin A and C but also contains both parts of Vitamin B, or as is sometimes known, Vitamins F and G.

Practically all of the fresh fruits are fairly rich in Vitamin A and B, including particularly peaches, prunes, cantaloupes and cherries; and many of the berries, such as the strawberry, are rich in Vitamin C.

Spinach, the crown of the vegetable family, is the best available source among all the vegetables for all the vitamins. Furthermore, it provides reasonable amounts of iron and other mineral salts.

The amount of Vitamin A in a vegetable may be determined roughly by color. The yellow vegetables, such as carrots and yellow corn, are rich in Vitamin A, whereas white corn has

GARY COOPER TO STAR AT CAPITOL

Few motion pictures can boast the colorful background of "One Sunday Afternoon." Gary Cooper's latest starring picture for Paramount, in which Fay Wray, Francis Fuller, Roscoe Karns and Neil Hamilton are featured. The picture, directed by Stephen Roberts, will open at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow afternoon.

One enormous scene is an amusement park which covers nearly three acres. There are the old-time Ferris wheel, the horse-drawn merry-go-round, shooting gallery, doll-racks glass-blowing factory, roller-coaster and concessions of every sort from a pink lemonade stand to a greased-pig show.

There's a huge German beer-garden, featuring a forty-piece German band. A lively stable, buggy factory, the smalltown poolroom with its wooden Indian marker, and many forgotten relics of an antiquated transportation system: stage and mail coaches, sulkeys that spin brilliantly behind thoroughbred trotters, phaetons with their haughty footmen, bugles, hacks and swanky victorias—all so popular in the early 1900's.

GRACIE FIELDS COMING TO EMPIRE

The Lancashire Nightingale, Gracie Fields, will return to the Empire Theatre again on Friday in her newest film production, "Sally in Our Alley." This is another story of London Town in which the incomparable Gracie works in a small cafe where she is known as the Golden Voice Waitress with many benefits accruing to the business as a consequence. A splendid British cast has been selected which includes Florence Desmond, the famous mimic whose marvellously true life imitations of Hollywood stars are the talk of London and New York.

Inquest Witness Clears Up One Mystery Angle on Death of Miss M. M. Lilley

The inquest over the body of Miss Maud M. Lilley was adjourned at Duncan yesterday evening until September 18, when pathological evidence regarding the autopsy findings will be presented.

One mystery angle surrounding the tragedy in the old disused well near Crofton, where the young Victoria woman's body was found last week, was practically cleared up by Charles Egle, one of the preliminary witnesses.

Mr. Egle, who discovered the body, recalled on the stand, that he had found the planks over the well out of place about five weeks ago, and had straightened them out. This statement satisfactorily explained how it happened that the body was found in the well when the top was completely covered.

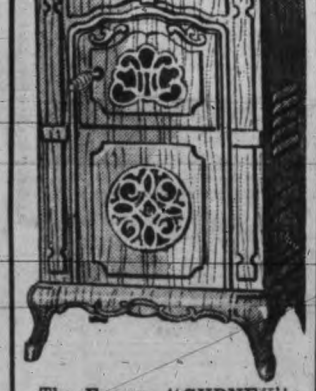

George Lilley, the father, and Miss Thelma Lilley, a sister, were other witnesses, testifying regarding Miss Lilley's departure on July 13 for Vancouver. Miss Thelma Lilley stated her sister had acted strangely quiet and subdued for several weeks prior to her disappearance.

Sergeant Richard Harvey, B.C.P.P., gave the police evidence dealing with the finding of the body and removal.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hogoo and Kipr, two Hindus charged in the City Police Court with unlawful possession of opium, were dismissed after a hearing before Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court this morning.

Permit for the construction of an eight-room dwelling at 931 McClure Street, was issued at the city building inspectors' office to-day to Mrs. C. Castle, 153 Olive Street. The work will cost about $3,500.

When struck by a falling tree on the Joe Kerrone logging operations on Mount Sicker, near Duncan, yesterday, a Chinese logger was killed, according to a Provincial Police report. The inquest will be held at Duncan this evening.

The regular monthly meeting of Ward Three, Liberal Association, will be held at Liberal headquarters on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. In view of the approaching election, attendance is requested as important matters are up for discussion.

To-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, in the Memorial Hall, Dean Quinlan will give a public lecture on "John Wesley and the Methodist Revival." This is the first of a series of six lectures on great spiritual revivals. A collection will be taken for the funds of the Men's Parish Guild.

The Victoria Detective Department is in receipt of a letter from the Vancouver Police Department requesting information regarding relatives of an ex-servant named James Harland Weeks, who lived in the mainland city. It is believed that two sisters of Weeks live in Victoria. Any persons knowing of the whereabouts of any of them are requested to get in touch with the local detective department as soon as possible.

Sixty thrashers, most of whom operate in the Peace River and Fraser Valley areas, have failed to make their 1932 returns to the government, and action is being taken. It was learned at the Parliament Buildings to-day. Under the law thrashers must furnish the Department of Agriculture with all information as to kinds and quantities of grain thrashed. This information, in turn, is passed on to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, and from it statistics are compiled as to the yields of grain in the province. Approximately 250 thrashers have made returns.

SAYS LANDLORDS BAR RELIEF MEN

Saanich Man Tells Court Evicted Tenants Have No-where to Go

Harry Kroeger, 1834 Second Street, appeared before Judge Lampman to-day and told the court that agents and others in charge of Saanich property refused to allow him to move into the house known to be on the Saanich relief list. He testified that Saanich had cut off his relief payments to five days a month at $2.50 a day, and asserted that was not enough to enable a man to pay rent. He did not dispute the rental was owing, although the monthly rate had been cut from $16 to $15.

"I have nowhere to go," said Mr. Kroeger.
 "We have every sympathy for this man, but we will lose our house ourselves unless something is kept to keep it from going for taxes," said Percival Walls, counsel for Jennie B. Kershaw, owner of the property, who wanted her rent or her property back.

"I can't make an order that Mrs. Kershaw shall furnish you with a house," said the judge, when Mr. Kroeger alleged Saanich landlords were boycotting relief men.

As the case had been before the court for some time in previous actions, the judge ruled that the house should be vacated and handed over to Mrs. Kershaw by September 16.

BLAND APPEAL THROWN OUT

Judge Finds Application Has Too Many Errors and Omissions

Charles Bland, now serving a term in Oakalla jail for being drunk on Broad Street and using indecent language to women, to-day lost his chance to appeal against Magistrate Jay's conviction and sentence, when Judge Lampman ruled that the application he filed was technically so faulty that the case was not legally before him.

C. L. Harrison, prosecutor, pointed out that the appeal notice was full of so many errors and omissions, that it did not have any legal standing at all. The judge ordered the appeal struck off the list.

PLAINTIFFS FAIL TO PAY UP
 J. Stuart Yates appeared before the court and said he had been notified to defend John Jardine and A. Kohout in their actions brought against them by Jean Bowers and Storek et al respectively. He wanted to know why the cases were not called to-day as announced.

Registrar David Reid reported the trouble was due to the fact that the hearing fees had not been paid by the plaintiffs in either action.
 The judge said he would give a ruling on procedure to decide the question now up as to whether Mr. Yates will have the privilege of collecting costs against Mrs. Bowers and the Storeks.

NOTED SHANGHAI SURGEON VISITS

Dr. E. D. Birt, Who Attended Wounded During Invasion, Awaiting Ship Here

Inspects Dairy Cattle on Premier Tolmie's Farm and Admires Gardens

One of Shanghai's most famous surgeons, Dr. E. D. Birt, who played a prominent part in ministering to the wounded during the invasion of the Chinese city by Japanese forces, is a visitor to Victoria to-day, and will sail by the Empress of Japan on Saturday for the Orient.

He is Dean of the Faculty of Medicine and surgeon-in-chief at the Paulun Hospital at Shanghai. Apart from his profession, Dr. Birt is interested in dairying and horticulture. As the guest of Premier Tolmie, the Shanghai surgeon to-day went out to "Cloverdale" and inspected the fine herd of dairy cattle there. He and the Premier found much in common to talk about. He visited the Layrite nurseries yesterday and purchased a collection of plants and seeds, which he will take back home with him to augment his wonderful garden in Shanghai. He is impressed with the profusion of flowers in the gardens of this city.

Dr. Birt has been a resident of Shanghai for twenty-four years, and he occupies a distinctive place in his chosen profession.

IN CHARGE OF WOUNDED
 He was one of the busiest men in Shanghai during the fighting which led to the complete destruction of the city. For the Paulun and other hospitals were overflowing with wounded soldiers.

Shanghai has the greatest future of any city in the Orient, in the opinion of the visiting surgeon. In spite of the internal situation in China and the disruption of affairs and destruction caused by the Japanese invasion, Shanghai has shaken off any temporary setback it may have suffered and is as gay and progressive as ever, he said.

For the last year, Dr. Birt, in company with Mrs. Birt, has been touring Europe on vacation, and they are at the Empress Hotel awaiting the departure of their ship at the end of the week.

FOUR UP HERE FOR CITIZENSHIP

Applicants and Witnesses Testify as to Their Fitness to Become Canadians

Camille Delfino, A. Notte, who came here six years ago from Italy and has achieved success in the food preparation trade, appeared before Judge Lampman to-day and testified positively to his desire to become a Canadian citizen. Anthony Genn and Edwin Rainaldi took the stand and testified as to his character and fitness to become a Canadian.

Joseph Ambros, who came here from Hungary and has now become a C.P.R. railway official on the island line, also applied for citizenship. Steven Levinsky and Walter Peters testified as to his character.

Mildred Irene Hudlin's application for citizenship was endorsed by Lorenzo Jones, who told the court he had known her for twenty years and she was of high character and standing.

Captain Peter Christopher Bramson, formerly of Denmark, had his application for citizenship backed by Charles Nickerson and Capt. John Anderson.

The applications as approved by the judge will be forwarded to the Secretary of State at Ottawa for final approval.

The citizenship application of Olaf T. Jacobson was stood over for one month.

Birthday Greetings Are Extended

To-day To—STANLEY RICKINSON VICTOR A. CORY

Stanley Rickinson, who celebrates his twenty-seventh birthday to-day, is a mailman. Unlike the postmen ennobled by Kipling, Stan, does not work under a blazing tropic sun but in the Yukon, with the cold Northern Lights for a guide. Mr. Rickinson was born at Winnipeg and came to Victoria when still very young, is employed by the Klondike Airways, driving the caterpillar mail service. He is in Victoria on three months' leave-of-absence and is staying with his brothers at the family residence, 639 Wilson Street. In October Mr. Rickinson will return to his lonely post for a period of three or four years.

Victor A. Cory, manager of the S. S. Kresge Company's Victoria Store, comes from the Black Hills of South Dakota. When he was a youth he left home at the age of eighteen and traveled all over the middle and far-west states as well as the western provinces of Canada. He has been employed by the S. S. Kresge Company for the last six years. Four years ago he went to Winnipeg to act as manager of the store there and then came to Victoria to open the store. After the store was opened he was transferred to New Westminster where he remained for a year and a half finally coming back to Victoria to act as manager here again. Mr. Cory, who as he is known to his many friends and acquaintances, is a member of several organizations in the city. He lives at 1438 Beach Drive.

TO DECREASE FIRE HAZARD

New Regulations on Chimneys and Oil-burners Become Effective

Changes in Building Construction Required Under Provincial Code

Appointment of two city officials to administer new regulations regarding construction of chimneys and the installation and operation of oil-burning equipment will be required following announcement of the regulations by the provincial fire marshal.

The City Council will consider the matter at its next meeting. The building inspector, James Barf, is suggested as administrator of the chimney regulations and the fire chief, Alexander Munro, for the oil burners.

The new regulations, effective on August 1 call for strict control of these two possible fire hazards.
 Construction of all chimneys in the future will require a permit and must proceed along certain limitations laid down in the act to decrease the fire hazard.

All oil burning equipment sold or installed after August 1 must have the approval of the fire marshal who has the right to submit any such apparatus for tests to the Laboratory of the National Research Council of Canada. All range oil burners must bear the stamp of approval by this council.

Gravity feed tanks for oil burning equipment are prohibited in public buildings, department stores, amusement centres and so forth under the new law.

While not affecting equipment installed previous to August 1, the regulations allow one year's time for compliance in respect to gravity feed tanks on domestic range oil burners, which, it is stated, must not be of more than six gallons capacity and when made of glass to be shielded from breakage by a metal case and set not less than two feet from the range. After August 1, 1934, no glass containers must be used.

Building officials are making a close study of the new regulations on chimneys to note in what details they will affect present building requirements.

DAHLIA WINDOW WINNERS NAMED

David Spencer Ltd. Gains First Place in Display Feature of Dahlia Week

Large Show at Willows Next Week Expected to Be Spectacular One

Cactus and other types of dahlias, including pom-poms, with their varied shades which blended into a veritable kaleidoscope of color set against a black velvet background won for David Spencer Limited first prize in the window display contest being staged here in connection with Dahlia Week. The blooms in Spencer's windows were from Elder's Capital Dahlia Nurseries.

Second prize in the window competition was gained by J. Bennett in Angus Campbell Ltd., while Mrs. John Bruce's display in the Victoria Floral Company's window was third, and Mrs. Scott's layout in the window of Savory's Seed Store was fourth. Fred Saunders, head gardener at the Empress Hotel, was the judge.

In the competition for baskets containing large flowers, A. Haggar, with his display at the Kingston-Gillette Coal Co., was awarded first prize, while M. O. Mayhew's collection was second and G. Smethurst third. M. O. Mayhew was also awarded first and second prizes for the collection of dahlias and pom-poms, with G. Smethurst third.

ANNUAL AFFAIR
 The window display is one of the features of what is hoped to be an annual affair, Dahlia Week, being sponsored by the Victoria Dahlia Society, an organization composed of dahlia lovers and growers of Victoria and vicinity.

Nearly twenty-five stores in the city have loaned their window space for dahlia displays. Some of these displays are small while others are quite large. J. Bennett's display in Angus Campbell's window is a very attractive one. A tall black container holds a profusion of yellow-colored bloom which pyramids to the foreground where a multi-colored bunch of flowers stretches across the front. Another beautiful display was arranged by M. O. Mayhew for the large-flowered basket competition.

With the prospect of one or two days of fine weather which will put the blooms in perfect condition for the officials of the Dahlia Society are hopeful that this will be the finest show ever held in Victoria. Dahlia Week will come to a conclusion next week with the gigantic display on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Main Building at the Willows Exhibition.

MORE ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL

Registration Greater Than Last Term; Grade Schools Show Small Decline

Attendance at the Victoria High School this year shows a slight increase from last term, school board officials said this morning.

The registration figures have not been totaled yet but calculations show a larger number attending the institution.

In the grade schools the situation is the reverse and there is a slight decrease in the number attending.

The School Board is scheduled to meet this afternoon to discuss the school opening and to transact any business required in this connection.

It is understood the proposed appointment of one teacher, in the grade schools to fill a vacancy may be obviated by reorganization in view of the drop in attendance. However, this is a matter for the board to decide.

Victoria West W.M.S. Resume Meetings

Activities were resumed in the Women's Missionary Society of Victoria West United Church when yesterday afternoon Mrs. L. A. Young presided at the September meeting at her home on Colville Road.

Mrs. Geo. Guy conducted the opening devotional prayer. A report was given on collection for life membership. Miss Beattie's invitation to hold the October thanksgiving (evening) service at her home was accepted with thanks.

The treasurer's encouraging report was adopted as given. For the Watch Tower, Mrs. Rees reported on Japan. The visiting committee, Mrs. Holder and Mrs. Rees, gave account of calls made on sick in hospital. The study book, "His Dominion of Canada," conducted by Mrs. Rees, proved most interesting and instructive.

After singing of consecration hymn and closing prayer, the social time was enjoyed, while refreshments were served by the hostesses.

NATIONALIZED BANKS OPPOSED

Provincial Treasurer of Quebec Gives Views to Bank Inquiry Commission

Quebec, Sept. 6.—Advocates of a national system of banking "have confounded in mind as their ultimate goal," the Royal Commission on banking, said Lord Macmillan, Quebec Provincial Treasurer, whether they would admit it or not, that was the case, he asserted.

Listing the arguments against nationalized banking previously suggested in parts of Western Canada, the Quebec treasurer insisted a national system would be subject to political influence. Persons borrowing from a national bank, he feared, would not consider themselves bound to pay in the same sense as if borrowing from private individuals. When the money owed belongs to a government, the pressure for a moratorium is brought to bear on politicians is something more than they can withstand," he said.

CENTRAL BANK
 Presenting his view as personal and not necessarily representing the attitude of the government, Mr. Stockwell also gave Lord Macmillan his conclusions against the establishment of a central bank. The cost would be too great, he thought. Provinces which were politically sympathetic to the federal government of the day might be favored when it came to the granting of credit and the general operation of this politically-contorted institution. And generally, the present system had worked out satisfactorily.

"In a general way the clauses of the Bank Act and the Finance Act can effectively accomplish many of the functions claimed by those who advocate the establishment of a Dominion central bank," said Mr. Stockwell.

Jack Crawford and Fred Perry Pressed In U.S. Tournament

Australian and British Tennis Stars Experience Unexpected Opposition

PERRY CARRIED TO FOUR SETS

Eickichi Itoh, Japanese Davis Cup Player, Only Seeded Player to Lose

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 6.—On turf still slippery and hazardous from week-end rains, the foreign tennis contingent encountered unexpectedly rough going yesterday in the second round of the national men's singles championship.

There was, however, only one casualty in the "seeded" ranks of the invaders, as Eickichi Itoh, of the Japanese Davis Cup team, skidded out of the tournament.

The entire Australian contingent, including the great Crawford, looked anything but impressive.

Fred Perry, Britain's Davis Cup hero, and Jiro Satoh, hard hitting No. 1 of the Japanese team, also met surprising opposition.

Itoh, seeded No. 7 in the foreign list, was eliminated by a former college star, Dr. David O'Loughlin of Pittsburgh, in the only real upset of the day that cut the field from sixty-four to thirty-two for the third round today. Dr. O'Loughlin, trimmed the young Japanese, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Satoh struggled with another Pennsylvanian, Hugh Lynch, of Buckhills, before pulling out his match at 6-4, 6-6, 6-4.

CRAWFORD KRAVAT
Crawford made his first appearance on the stadium turf against Julius Seligson, national collegiate champion of 1928, and was erratic for two sets before winning 6-4, 6-3, 6-0.

Yankovic, another college star, had attracted more attention than any other stroke in the tournament, had a real battle with Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., before winning 6-3, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4.

Don Turnbull and Adrian Quist, Australian doubles mates, found the footing and the opposition difficult. Turnbull barely squeezed through against the veteran metropolitan player, J. Gilbert Hall, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4, while Quist overcame another seasoned New Yorker, Ned Herndon, by 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Perry dropped his first set with the left-handed Robert Bryan of Chattanooga, Tenn., before settling down to win 3-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-3.

The home guard, led by Vines and Frank X. Shields, New Yorker, had relatively little difficulty. The champion defeated Ray Palmer Jr. of Malby, N.Y., 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, while Shields whipped John Nogrady of New York, 6-0, 6-2, 6-4.

Wilmer Allison, Cliff Sutter, Frankie Parker and George Lott, all came through in straight sets.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—The east's ranking junior feminine tennis stars and the concededly best girl player of the Pacific Coast served notice yesterday in no uncertain tones of their campaign for the girls' national net crown.

The notice was given in smashing strokes in the opening day's play of the annual tourney at Philadelphia Cricket Club to decide a successor for the 1932 title, Helen Fulton of Chicago.

Both Bonnie Miller of Los Angeles, top-seeded, and Millicent Hirsch, New York star and second-ranking, crashed into the quarter-final bracket by defeating two opponents each with the loss of only a single game.

The Californian, a finalist for the crown last year, overwhelmed Katherine Bogan, Darby, Pa., in straight love sets and then defeated Lily Winston, Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Hirsch stroked out a love set victory over her first round opponent, Elizabeth Goodman of Philadelphia, and swept on to a 6-1, 6-0 triumph over Dorothy Morton, Philadelphia.

THE BIG SIX
Jimmy Fox had all the better of the batting argument with Heinie Manush, his only Big Six clouting rival to get into action yesterday. Joe Kubel, hardly more than an onlooker in the race, also played, but slumped clear out of the sextette, giving third place in the American League to the idle Al Simmons. In five official times at bat against the Yankees, Fox whalloped a homer, double and single, bringing his average up three points to .363.

Manush dropped a point to .332 with three hits in ten tries, while Kubel failed to connect in eight times up.

The standings: G. AB. R. H. Pct.
Klein, Phillies 142 300 85 190 .380
Fox, Athletics 127 483 109 177 .363
Davis, Phillies 115 410 92 142 .346
Manush, Senators 132 378 104 192 .332
Simmons, Red Sox 123 480 50 185 .330
Schulmerich, Phillies 98 335 54 118 .327

HOME RUN STANDING
Home runs yesterday—Fox, Athletics, 1; G. N. Y. Yankees, 1; Chapman, Yankees, 1; Crockett, Yankees, 2; Cramer, Athletics, 1; Schulte, Senators, 1.

CANADIAN ATHLETES NEED ONLY COACHES, SAYS KNOX

Canada's Former Greatest All-round Athlete States Present Boys and Girls Lack Interest and Enthusiasm; Majority of Them Are Racing to Train Instead of Training to Race

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Canadian sport needs competent coaches and needs them badly, in the opinion of Walter Knox, formerly one of the world's greatest all-round athletes, a pioneer in the mass instruction of youthful Canadian athletes.

"Particularly are field athletics suffering due to lack of coaching," he said. "In addition to that the modern athlete does not show as much interest and enthusiasm as those of yesterday. The difference in conditions have brought about that change. Fellows and girls have twenty places to go whereas years ago they only had a few."

"It is doubtful whether a group of modern athletes pitted against a group of old-timers could defeat them in a variety of different events."

"The trouble with present-day athletes," he went on, "is that 80 per cent of them are racing to train instead of training to race. That's the whole thing in a nutshell."

An athlete of remarkable versatility, Walter Knox has probably broken and held more world records than any other man in the world. His colorful career, which has been filled with endless achievements, have given him a well-earned place in sportsman's hall of fame.

CANADA'S GREATEST
Though a native of Listowel, Ontario, Knox spent most of his life in Orillia. At the early age of nine, Walter began to show an athletic ability that was one day to make him Canada's greatest versatile athlete.

Knox's achievements are so numerous and amazing that one could touch only on his more remarkable performances. He retired after having carried away 411 firsts, 126 seconds and 91 thirds.

In San Francisco during 1908, Knox broke a world record running seventy-five yards in 7 1/4 seconds. The next year he equalled a world record at Golden Gate Park stadium in San Francisco, doing 100 yards in 9.3-5 seconds. In 1913 at Hamilton's Point he won seven out of ten events to win the all-round professional championship of Canada. The next year saw him take the all-round professional championship of the world at Manchester, England. He was thirty-seven years old at the time.

WONDERFUL COACH
Not only was Knox an outstanding athlete, but also a reputable coach. It was not unusual for him to take an average athlete, correct his ways, and within a few days have that same person winning titles.

Knox's first job as coach was with the Bozeman Agricultural College at Montana. Next he coached a high school in San Francisco. In 1902 he went to Stockholm, Sweden, as coach to the Canadian Olympic team. Two years later he was appointed chief coach for England, Ireland and Scotland by the British Olympic committee for three years to coach athletes in the British Isles to preparation for the 1916 Olympic games, which were to have been held at Berlin, Germany.

HENRI COCHET WILL MEET BILL TILDEN IN PRO DEBUT

New York, Sept. 6.—Henri Cochet, French tennis star, will make his United States debut as a professional in Madison Square Garden on February 21. It was announced yesterday. He will face Bill Tilden, American professional.

Cochet is scheduled to open his professional career September 22 in Paris, playing with Martin Piau, world's pro champion, against Tilden and Bruce Barnes of Texas.

It is understood Cochet and Tilden will make a short tour of the United States early in 1934 and then go to South America for a number of appearances.

A report from Paris that Piau had announced Ellsworth Vines, American amateur star, would soon turn professional and join with Cochet and Tilden in a series of matches, was denied by Vines yesterday.

HAMILTON MAN LEADS SENIORS

Albert A. Adams Sets Pace in Canadian Tournament at End of First Round

Seignory Club, Que., Sept. 6.—Albert A. Adams, Hamilton, yesterday took the favored position at the eighteen-hole mark in the thirty-six-hole medal tournament for the Dominion senior golf title by negotiating the Seignory Club course in 79, nine over par, and two strokes better than any other of the ninety entrants.

It was a day of considerable surprises in the matter of scoring, but it paved the way for a final eighteen-hole round today. Two strokes behind Adams came H. C. P. Poste, Cornwall, Ont., with an 81, and one stroke farther back was F. A. Parker, Toronto. Between these three, it appears, lies the championship, unless some of the established senior stars are able to approach the Seignory Club course par of 70 tomorrow.

J. A. Lewis, New Westminster, posted a gross of 94 for a net of 83.

LAWN BOWLING

D. C. Hughes and J. Johnston, of the Canadian Pacific Club, captured the Yarrow Cup, emblematic of the doubles lawn bowling championship of Vancouver Island, in the competition staged on the Canadian Pacific greens over the Labor Day week-end.

Curtain Rung Down On English Cricket

Yorkshire Returned Winner For Seventeenth Time; Sussex In Second Place

London, Sept. 6.—For the eighth time in fifteen seasons since the war and the seventeenth time since 1893, the first occasion the county obtained leading place in the competition, Yorkshire has carried off the first-class county cricket championship.

With the conclusion of the match between Essex and Sussex yesterday, the curtain was rung down on county cricket for another season, but the former's first innings win did not affect the standing of the leading clubs.

Yorkshire last week made sure of first place in the table with a total of 315 points and a percentage of 70.00. Sussex again took second position with 311 points and a percentage of 69.79. With Kent in third place the three clubs finished in the same positions as last year.

FINE RECOVERY
Essex made a remarkable recovery to finish fourth. Last year the eastern county won only four games and closed the season in fourteenth position. The decline of Nottinghamshire and Surrey was another feature of this summer's play. In 1932 these counties finished fourth and fifth, respectively, but today they are placed ninth and tenth.

Glamorgan failed to make any headway and are at the bottom of the standing. The western county gained major points in only one game.

STANDINGS
The final standings follow:

What Are Woman's Happiest Years?

Dorothy Dix

Calla Busy Periods Best

The Happiest Years for a Woman Lie Between The Ages of 30 and 43, When All Her Thoughts Are Absorbed by Husband and Children, or by a Career—Bitterest Years Are Those from 43 to 50

A CORRESPONDENT asks: What is the best period of a woman's life? That naturally depends upon circumstances and upon the temperament and character of a woman. Sometimes fate showers all of its blessings on the early part of a woman's life. Sometimes it waits until she is old before handing her her quota of sugar plums. Sometimes a young girl quaffs down the cup of joy in a single draft, and often and often a woman never knows happiness until years of experience and suffering have given her a philosophy of life to live by, and taught her how to make the best of things.

It is generally believed that girlhood is the happiest time of a woman's life. Traditionally, it is the playtime between the school-room and settling down to the monotonous grind of domesticity. It is presupposed that every girl is beautiful and carefree, that she is gay and light-hearted and attractive to the opposite sex, and that life for her is a merry-go-round filled with parties and pretty frocks and good times.

Of course, there is an occasional lucky maiden whose Fairy Godmother does dump all of the good gifts into her cradle. But, alas, the great majority of girls have no Fairy Godmother, or else the stingy old jade holds out on them, and bestows upon them neither a rich father nor a peaches-and-cream complexion and naturally wavy hair nor does she endow them with any allure for men.

So to a vast number of women girlhood is not a time of joy and song and dancing feet. It is a period of frustrated hopes and bitter mortifications and anxiety and anxious striving and work and worry.

There are girls who sit at home with their parents night after night, eating their hearts out in bitter despair because they never have a date and lack that intangible something that makes boys single them out for attention. The girl who is a wallflower at a ball is burned up with as keen a sense of shame as any disgraced human being ever suffers. And almost every girl goes to a party with her heart fainting within her and her feet turned to ice, wondering if she will be cut in upon, or if her partner will be stuck and have to drag her around the entire evening.

And only a woman who has been through it knows the herculean labor of catching a husband, and how many borer a girl must endure, how many times she must have her feet trodden to a pulp by awkward partners, how much tact and diplomacy she must use upon boys, how tired her face gets of wearing the smile that won't come off, while she makes herself attractive to all men, hoping that somewhere in the mass is the one man that she desires.

I would not say that girlhood is the happiest time of the average woman's life, and assuredly age, the other extreme, is not, although to many women it is a time of great placid enjoyment. But this is a negative happiness in which one has no hopes, because one has no hopes; in which one does not suffer much because the edge of feeling has been dulled, and one nothing matters.

So far as it can be settled chronologically, I should say that the happiest time of life to most women is the period between thirty and forty-two or forty-three. The unhappiest period between forty-three and fifty. And the second happiest period from fifty odd to seventy.

By the time a woman is thirty she has usually found herself. She is either married or else she has established herself in some business or profession and she is at peace with herself and the world. Her hands are full of work. Her mind occupied with a thousand interests and plans. She is on her tiptoes, alert, alive, her days never half long enough to do all the interesting and exciting things she wants to do.

If she has children, she has the joy of having little arms around her neck and the never-ending happiness of knowing that she is necessary to them, and that there is no one in the world that they love as they do Mother. Her husband is still a sweetheart and too much occupied and too hard working getting established in his business and supporting a growing family to have time or inclination to philander. So these busy, bustling, hard-worked years are happy years to most women.

Then come the stormy forties, in which the children have grown up and left the home nest and when Mother's house and hands are empty. Worse still, husband has arrived at the age of indiscretion when he begins to think that his wife is too old for him and that his real soulmate is some little flapper.

There is no bitterer period of life for a woman than that in which she has to watch her weight with one eye and her husband with the other, and try to keep a man who has gone suddenly cuckoo from committing a folly that will wreck their whole future.

But after fifty-five a woman passes into a period of peace that passes all understanding. She is still young enough and strong enough to do anything she wants to do, and she has the time for enjoyments, for travel and reading and play that she never had before. Men are no longer a disturbing factor in her life, so she doesn't have to bring on nervous prostration trying to please them and her husband is either so bound to her that she couldn't lose him or she has lost him so long ago that she has almost forgotten about it. Here is the sunshine that turns the twilight into glory.

But what is the best period of a woman's life only the woman herself knows.

Lore of Precious Gems

THE TURQUOISE
"If you look at the image of the new moon reflected from a turquoise, you will escape evil and will have good fortune."

the gem through trade with the Turks; but the fact is that Persia, more than Turkey, has been the homeland of the turquoise. Miners in Persia, even to this day, go down into the ground to cut into rock and locate veins containing this stone.

The blue, green or blue-green color of the turquoise comes from bits of copper in the stone. To wash the gem in soapy water is likely to change its color and to lower its value.

The Persian type of turquoise is of highest value. But, Palestine, Arabia, Australia, Mexico and the southwestern part of the United States also have mines.

Another interesting stone is the agate. It contains stripes and circles of grey, white, black, green, blue, brown and red. In olden Egypt agate stones were used to form eyes in the statues of gods. A dark circle on the stone, with white all around it, may look like an eye; and people have been startled by the agate eyes of the old statues.

The name "agate" comes from a river in Sicily where the stone was found in ancient times. At present it is picked up from the beds of rivers or the shores of lakes in many lands, including our own. Stones with "eyes" are found in large numbers around Lake Superior.

Moss agates are frequent in the Rocky mountains; the markings look like moss or ferns, but they are really colors made by iron oxide or manganese oxide.
